Danforth ruling sought on expense pay plan

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The attorney general will be asked to determine the constitutionality of a new plan for paying expenses of members of the House of Representatives, according to Deputy Commissioner of Administration Mark Edelman.

"If it's legal, we'll pay it," Edelman said. "But if there's a question about that, I don't want to stick my neck out that way."

Edelman made the comments in response to a threat issued by Senate Minority Floor Leader A. Clifford Jones of Brentwood Wednesday that he would file suit in the state Supreme Court to halt implementation of the plan.

The new system, approved earlier this week, calls for each of the 163 representatives to receive a $400 monthly allotment beginning Feb. 1 to pay for stamps, office supplies, stationary, a home-district secretary,telephone charges and "miscellaneous non-reimbursed expens es."

But the new plan does not require any public accounting of the use of the funds or that any unspent money be returned to the state. It does provide for a procedure to return unspent funds if a member wants to.

"It's damn outrageous," Jones said in an interview. "It's embarassing to the whole legislature. I'm getting letters already from people who think the Senate is doing it too."

If the allotment checks are issued by Edelman, who as deputy commissioner of administration is responsible for certifying all state payments, Jones said he would file suit to halt the plan on the grounds that it is in direct violation of the Constitution.

The Constitution says no legislator can receive any compensation from the state abbve his salary as authorized by statute. Under state law, all legislators are given a salary of $8,400 a year, $25 a day to cover expenses when they are in Jefferson City for legislative sessions and 12 cents a mile for travel to and from their homes for legislative sessions.

"This opens the door for anything," Jones claimed of the new plan. "These guys could go off on junkets or anything."

In the past the House has paid for office operations other than the "miscellaneous non-reimbursed expenses" from a general House fund, the same system still used in the Senate.

While the revised plan only changes the method of paying for those expenses out of the general fund, it includes payment for unspecified "miscellaneous non-reimbursed expenses," which is not explicitly authorized by state law.

"If there's a legitimate possibility of a court case, we have to be even more cautious," Edelman said about issuing the checks. "We have to certify that the checks are legal. If they're not, that would go against my bond and I don't want to do that, thank you."

If the attorney general's opinion on the matter does not come before Feb. 1, Edelman said he was not sure what course of action he would take.

Under the new plan, each representative will be responsible for the annual allotment of $4,800 and will have to account for it to the Internal Revenue Service.

Because of the fear that some members may deposit the monthly checks in their own bank accounts, House leaders have recommended that each representative set up a special bank account to handle only that money and the transactions involved.

Ken Daust

Daust to speak at DSA banquet

Ken Daust, director of promotions for the St. Louis Baseball Cardinals, will be the guest speaker at the Jaycees Distinguished Service Award Banquet at 7 p.m. Feb. 25 at the Sikeston Country Club.

Daust is a former St. Louis radio and television announcer who began his career announcing with a college radio station at his alma mater, Northwestern University, in Evanston, Ill.

His broadcasting experience includes play-by-play, aerial traffic reports, newscaster, disc-jockey, and in the early days of one St. Louis television station, he did as many as seven live shows a day.

With the Cardinals, Daust handles all promotions, emcees filed ceremonies, receives bids, makes radio and tv appearances, books Redbird players for appearances during the off season and books showing of films in the Cardinal Film Library.

He assists in organizing the various clinics the team conducts during the season and is in charge of the Cardinal Caravan good-will tour. Daust also handles fan mail and acts as liaison between players and the public

Simon asks hike in U.S. debt ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Blaming rising federal deficits, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon asked Congress today for a 22 per cent increase in the federal debt ceiling to $604 billion through June 30 of 1976.

The current limit on government borrowing is $495 billion. However, that is a temporary limit that expires on March 31, after which the limit would legally fall o $400 billion.

Simon told the House Ways and Means Committee that the government will exceed the temporary limit of $495 billion on Feb. 8.

"Thus there is a pressing need for immediate action on the part of Congress," he said.

Simon appeared on Capitol Hill as President Ford and key Democratic congressmen were rushing into a fast-developing battle over new oil import tariffs the President plans to proclaim later in the day in his campaign for American energy independence.

Ford, directly challenging Congress, declared Wednesday night he would sign the proclamation for higher tariffs on imported oil beginning Feb. 1 in a bid to curb American oil consumption.

The tariff hike is a key part of the administration plan to curtail petroleum consumption by increasing prices. Opponents of the hike claim it will fuel inflation without cutting consumption.

Simon blamed the the rapid downward slide of the economy for the worsening federal revenues picture.

He said the federal government will receive $6.7 billion less in the 1975 fiscal year from individual income taxes than it had earlier estimated, and $3.7 billion less in corporate income taxes.

"As a result, federal deficits are mounting rapidly and are causing the current squeeze on the debt ceiling," Simon said.

The Treasury secretary previously had said he is horrified by the proposed federal deficits of nearly $35 billion this year and $50 billion next year. But he told the committee they are necessary in the current recession.

He said the proposed debt limit will include the cost of the President's new economic proposals, but would not allow for any new spending programs by Congress.

The President told some 1,000 persons at a banquet of the business-sponsored Conference Board: "I'm going to sign the declaration tomorrow to force action by the Congress so the country will have action and not limitations in the months ahead."

Just hours earlier, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., new chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, called a special hearing today for action on legislation to force a 90-day delay in Ford's tariff plan.

"Time is really critical," said Ullman. He argued that the President's tariff plan would impose "a hardship on the American people." Ullman predicted Congress would decide to block Ford's plan.

Ullman said he expects to have a blocking bill ready for congressional action next week and he thinks there are enough votes to override any presidential veto.

On Tuesday, Ullman wrote Ford urging the President to "take no further action" toward imposing additional fees or tariffs on oil imports and to "await appropriate legislative action."

Ford had advised Congress last week he would use presidential powers to raise the fee on all imported crude oil and petroleum products, hiking tariffs by $1 per barrel Feb. 1, an additional $1 effective March 1 and another $1 on April 1, for a total $3 boost.

As his committee began hearings Wednesday on tax cut legislation, Ullman said Ford turned down his request for a delay on the tariff.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, who testified before the Ways and Means Committee, later defended Ford's tariff decision.

The President "made the decision, which is a correct decision, not to move the route of more government, rationing and allocation, which would be an absolute nightmare for the American people," he told reporters.

Meantime, five of the six New England governors decided Wednesday to seek a federal court order to block Ford's tariff action. New Hampshire's Gov. Meldrim Thomson opposed the court action.

P'ville banker gives testimony

KANSAS CITY (AP) A federal grand jury heard testimony Wednesday from a St. Louis stockbroker and a Portageville bank president in its investigation into the personal finances of former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and alleged corruption during his administration.

The witnesses Wednesday morning were J. A. Glynn Jr., a St. Louis stockbroker, and R. L. Saalawalchter, president of the Farmers Bank of Portageville.

Saalwaechter was subpoenaed primarily to produce records of his bank relating to financial transactions involving Hearnes and various organizations, including the Bootheel Committee for Hearnes. The subpoenas were served on Saalwaechter by an agent of the Internal Revenue Service.

The U.S. attorney's office said at a court hearing earlier this month that the grand jury was investigating possible taxevasion violations by the former Democratic governor.

Way cleared for crossing signal lights

A negative environmental statement for the proposed signal lights at the Missouri Pacific crossing on East Malone Avenue has been approved by the Federal Highway Administration, clearing the way for future construction of the project, with federal funds, according to Lionel Murray, District 10 engineer for the highway department.

An environment statement is a written assessment of the impact upon the human environment which is anticipated as a result of the proposed highway construction, Murray said.

The spur runs from the Missouri Pacific main line to E. C. Robinson Lumber Co., Highway department figures show two crossings a day on the spur.

The statement is available for public inspection and copying at the District 10 office of the Missouri State Highway Department at Sikeston.

Fire guts Sikeston house

Fire Wednesday gutted a portion of a small frame house at 805 Delmar St. occupied by Henry Powell.

Firemen said the fire started about 6:45 p.m. in the northwest corner of the house, between the bathroom and clothes closet. The rear of the house was extensively damaged before firemen could extinguish the flames.

Cause of the fire is unknown, firemen said.

The house is owned by J. W. Shuffitt.

Thieves steal dogs, money

Thieves took a billfold containing $115 from the Kingsway Plaza Mall and four dogs from the City Dog Pound, police said today.

Elaine Woodruff of Poplar Bluff told police someone took her purse from Britt's Coffee Shop about 1:15 p.m. Wednesday while she was eating lunch.

The purse was later found in a trash can minus a billfold containing $115 and Mrs. Woodruff's check book.

She told police she had put her purse over the back of her chair. Two women sitting behind her left a short time later, apparently taking the purse with them.

Thieves took four dogs from the City Dog Pound sometime between 5 p.m. Monday and 9:45 a.m. Wednesday, including two male German Shepards, one black poodle-like dog and a male bulldog.

Police said someone apparently climbed the fence surrounding the building, cut through a screen over a window and crawled into the building.

2 school board terms expire

Two seats on the Sikeston R-6 School Board will become vacant this year.

The seats are occupied by Phil Barkett and Lee Shell, who were elected in 1972.

Neither man has yet filed for re-election to the three-year term.

The school board election is the first Tuesday in April.

Marijuana crops found in Bootheel

(EDITORS NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles on Drugs and their associatoin in Southeast Missouri)

By RON JAYNES

Local officers of the Missouri State Highway Patrol say Southeast Missouri definitely has a drug problem, although they claim they haven't heard as much about it recently as they did about six months ago.

"They may be more careful," Lt. W.E. Lemonds, head of the Troop E. satellite headquarters in Sikeston, noted. His officers reported 51 arrests for drug violations through 10 months of 1974.

Marijuana, which an estimated 35 million Americans have tried, is the Bootheel's biggest problem, according to law enforcement authorities report having made arrests for possession of sedatives, hallucinogens and stimulants, but say they never have run across any heroin.

Sedatives are drugs which induce sleep. When taken in small doses, they may temporarily modify tension and anxiety in some people. When used without close supervision, the likelihood of taking increased amounts and becoming dependent are present. In street parlance, the sedatives are also called "goof balls", "sleepers" and "downers." The barbiturates constitute the largest group of sedatives.

Hallucinogens (also called psychedelics) are drugs capable of eliciting changes of sensation, thinking, self-awarenss and emotion. Alternation of time and space perception, illusions, hallucinations and delusions may be either minimal or overwhelming, depending on the dose and the drug.

The results are variable, and the same person experiences different reactions on different occasions.

A large number of natural synthetic hallucinogens have been identified. LSD is the most potent and best studied of these. Mescaline, from the peyote cactus; psilocybin, from the Mexican mushroom; morning glory seeds; and DMT, STP, MDA and others have somewhat similar effects.

Stimulantts are drugs which increase activity. Their limited medical uses have included the suppression of appetite, the reduction of fatigue or mild depression and, paradoxically, the treatment of hyperactive children.

Many stimulants are known, including cocaine, caffeine, amphetamines and methamphetimines.. The latter drugs are commonly called "speed" or "crystal." Stimulants are also known as "uppers", or "pep pills". Amphetamines are the most widely abused stimulants.

Heroin accounts for 90 per cent of the narcotics addiction problem in the United States and is common in large cities. It no longer has a medical use in this country and all heroin in the U. S. has been smuggled in.

Paregoric, containing morphine; cough syrups, containing codeine or other narcotics; and methadone are also abused.

Most of the drug problem in the Bootheel, according to a highway patrol spokesman, is confined to persons in their mid-teens to early 20s.

Again the officers turn to marijuana as the major problem and says its use has reached "epidemic proportions". The schools are beginning to report a lot of "pot smoking," which normally is reported to the local juvenile officer, a patrol spokesman stated.

Crops of marijuana have been located in the Charleston area and in Scott County, authorities report.

"The locally grown "grass" is about a 10th as strong as that which is raised in Mexico," Sgt. A. E. "Bud" Mills pointed out. "We have run across some marijuana in transport from California and once found an abandoned car with 400 pounds of unprocessed "bricks."

The most commonly found amphetamine is a small white pill, which officers describe as the size of a birth control pill and is identified as a diet pill.

The Southeast Missouri Crime Laboratory at Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau tests all confiscated drugs for strength and content and reports the findings to local officers.

A special drug unit of the highway patrol was organized in 1969 and has been doing undercover work throughout the state.

"We don't have any one person here in the Bootheel," Lt. Lemonds pointed out. "To give you some example of the size of the problem, I would say you

Hallucinogens (also called psychedelics) are drugs capable of eliciting changes of sensation, thinking, self-awarenss and emotion. Alternation of time and space perception, illusions, hallucinations and delusions may be either minimal or overwhelming, depending on the dose and the drug.

The results are variable, and the same person experiences different reactions on different occasions.

A large number of natural synthetic hallucinogens have been identified. LSD is the most potent and best studied of these. Mescaline, from the peyote cactus; psilocybin, from the Mexican mushroom; morning glory seeds; and DMT, STP, MDA and others have somewhat similar effects.

Stimulantts are drugs which increase activity. Their limited medical uses have included the suppression of appetite, the reduction of fatigue or mild depression and, paradoxically, the treatment of hyperactive children.

Many stimulants are known, including cocaine, caffeine, amphetamines and methamphetimines.. The latter drugs are commonly called "speed" or "crystal." Stimulants are also known as "uppers", or "pep pills". Amphetamines are the most widely abused stimulants.

Heroin accounts for 90 per cent of the narcotics addiction problem in the United States and is common in large cities. It no longer has a medical use in this country and all heroin in the U. S. has been smuggled in.

Paregoric, containing morphine; cough syrups, containing codeine or other narcotics; and methadone are also abused.

Most of the drug problem in the Bootheel, according to a highway patrol spokesman, is confined to persons in their mid-teens to early 20s.

Again the officers turn to marijuana as the major problem and says its use has reached "epidemic proportions". The schools are beginning to report a lot of "pot smoking," which normally is reported to the local juvenile officer, a patrol spokesman stated.

Crops of marijuana have been located in the Charleston area and in Scott County, authorities report.

"The locally grown "grass" is about a 10th as strong as that which is raised in Mexico," Sgt. A. E. "Bud" Mills pointed out. "We have run across some marijuana in transport from California and once found an abandoned car with 400 pounds of unprocessed "bricks."

The most commonly found amphetamine is a small white pill, which officers describe as the size of a birth control pill and is identified as a diet pill.

The Southeast Missouri Crime Laboratory at Southeast Missouri State University at Cape Girardeau tests all confiscated drugs for strength and content and reports the findings to local officers.

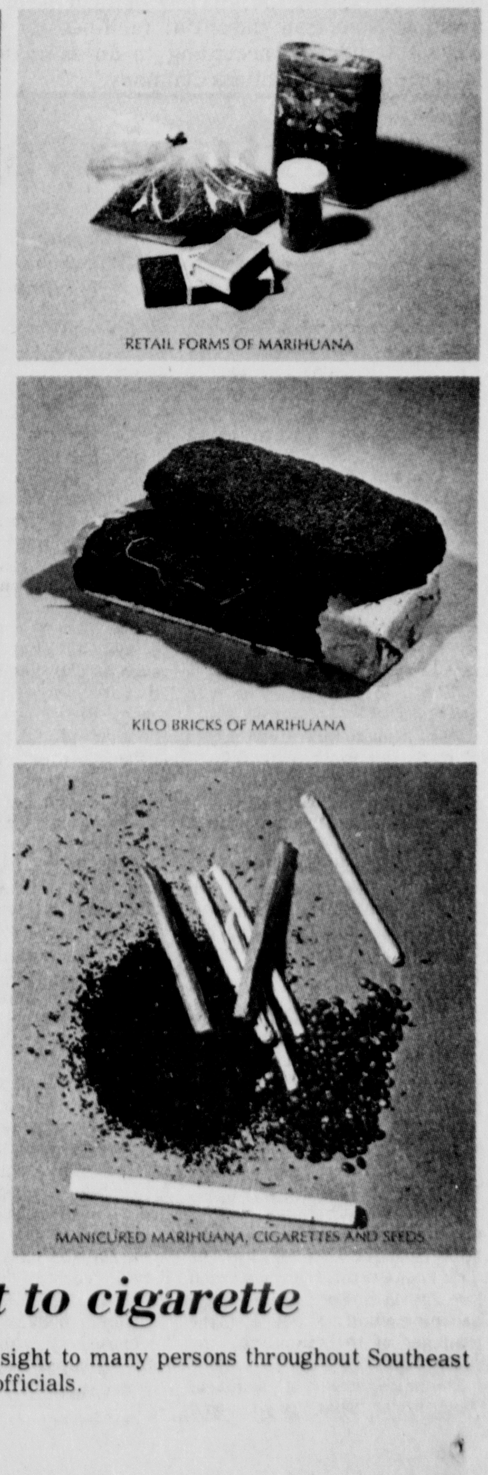

A special drug unit of the highway patrol was organized in 1969 and has been doing undercover work throughout the state.

"We don't have any one person here in the Bootheel," Lt. Lemonds pointed out. "To give you some example of the size of the problem, I would say you

PITFALLS IN SALT II

The American Security Council (ASC) — a private, Washington based organization devoted to the study of national defense problems — has presented in its Washington Report newsletter one of the most definitive analyses of the Vladivostok SALT II Agreement that we have yet seen. Its conclusions are sober and disturbing.

The analysis focused on three questions: 1. Did the SALT II Agreement open or foreclose the possibility of the Soviets' developing a first-strike capability against the United States? 2. Did the SALT II Agreement attain the parity required by the Jackson Amendment to the SALT I Agreement? 3. Is the SALT II Agreement verifiable?

On the first point, the Council recalled that the Secretary of Defense early last year dealt with the issue of a first-strike by pointing out that the four new Soviet ICBMs then being tested, if deployed and MIRVed, could give the Soviets as many as 7,000 one-to-two megaton warheads in their ICBM force alone. "They would then possess a major one-sided counterforce capability against the United States ICBM force. This is impermissible from our point of view," according to the Defense Secretary.

The ASC points out that under SALT II the Soviets will be free to deploy well over 8,000 such warheads if they desire. According to the ASC "The tremendous number and power of warheads which Soviet missiles could deliver on our ICBM sites, our bomber bases, and our submarines are so great that our ability to retaliate effectively after a surprise attack would be highly questionable. In summary, SALT II gives to the USSR the option of a first strike."

As to the question of parity, the ASC says that although SALT II does set a common level of 2,400 for the number of strategic delivery systems on each side and a common level of 1,320 as the number of missiles which can be MIRVed, there is no limit on an upper level of throw weight or on the total number of MIRVed warheads. This is where the heavier Russian missiles give them an advantage. At the time of SALT I the Soviet advantage was on the order of 4-5 to 1. The estimates for SALT II run roughly twice that high.

"In summary," says the ASC, "SALT II does not provide parity in strategic weapons, as required by the Jackson Amendment. It replaces the Soviet superiority in numbers of strategic weapons, as authorized in SALT I, with superiority in throw weight and numbers of MIRVed warheads. By either measure, the U.S. ends up in a secondary position."

Finally, regarding verification, the ASC analysis points out that although we have excellent reconnaissance satellite photography of the Soviet Union, there is really no way of telling what is on a missile once it has been placed in a silo and a cover put on top. Since there is no on-site inspection provided for in SALT II, we have really made an agreement based on trust. There is no way to know if the Soviets are complying with the terms of SALT II.

Before Congress approves the President's actions at Vladivostok, these are all points that require exhaustive, detailed discussion and debate. On the basis of what we know now, SALT II is not a good agreement and ought to be modified or rejected.

MISDIRECTED OUTRAGE

Outrage is a commonly-used word to describe consumer resentment toward rising food prices. It should be directed toward the acts of politicians who are striving, by every means, to block cuts in government spending. But most people seem to want the good thing that government dishes out without recognizing that they must be paid for.

Present-day prices of food and everything else merely reflect the inevitable collision between a nation that has accepted living on the cuff as a way of life and the immutable natural law that nothing is free. There is no mystery about rising prices in today's inflationary economy. What is amazing is that America's production and distribution system, from farm and factory to consumer, continues to turn out abundance such as the world has never before seen. Unprecedented, inflation-breeding government spending and the growing size and oppressiveness of our centralized bureaucracy would long ago have sapped the vitality of a lesser nation.

LOWER TEMPERATURES CAN NET COLD CASH

Americans who want to save energy or money or both this winer should start lowering their thermostats early. The odds are 14 to 1 that this winter will be colder than that of 1973.

The word comes from those who should know — the Commerce Department's National Ocean and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), the old "Weather Bureau."

According to NOAA;'s Environmental Data Service, some fairly dramatic fuel savings can be made for each degree the thermostat is lowered, ranging from 2 per cent per degree in Anchorage, Alaska, to 9 percent per degree in Orlando, Fla.

Interestingly enough, in terms of percentages the farther south you go the more you save. The actual quantities of fuel saved, of course, are much greater in cold areas because much more fuel is needed to heat buildings.

The calculations are based on a statistic called the "degree day."

Heating engineers have found that when the outside daily mean temperature (the high and low divided by two) is 65 degrees or higher, most homes and buildings need no heat to maintain comfortable indoor temperatures.

For each degree the daily mean temperature is below 65 degrees, you accumulate one heating degree day. Thus if the daily mean is 62, three degree days accumulate for the 24-hour period For each degree day, more fuel is required to maintain a comfortable indoor temperature.

A day with a mean temperature of 35 degrees — 30 degree days — would require twice as much heating fuel as a day with a mean temperature of 50, or 15 degree days.

FOREIGN OIL IN PERSPECTIVE

The survival of the United States as a sovereign power, with adequate military capability and economic strength, requires that policies are followed to encourage maximum prudent development of domestic petroleum resources.

In an appeal to President Nixon to resist pressures to permanently end oil import controls, Mr. Tom B. Medders, Jr., president of the 4,000 member Independent Petroleum Association of America, outlined some of he pitfalls of continued heavy reliance on foreign fuels. In addition to higher consumer costs and what he termed the "obvious security dangers" of over-dependence on foreign sources, Mr. Medders said that "within a decade or less" continuance of present trends would run the nation into a $25 to $30 billion annual trade deficit for imports of these fuels.

He added that the nation's fuel problems are not caused by lack of potential oil and natural gas resources in the U.S., but are due to governmental policies which have discouraged exploration and development. To correct this situation and expand domestic supplies, he urged "immediate" decontrol of wellhead gas prices for natural gas; raising crude oil prices to offset inflation and increased costs absorbed by the industry in recent years; and establishing "as a long-term goal" the extent to which the nation can safely become dependent on imported oil and natural gas.

The U.S. became a leader among nations by actively developing its resources. With reasonable regard for the environment, it must continue to do so. With goelogical surveys estimating that 55 percent of the discoverable oil, and 66 percent of the natural gas in this country are waiting to be found, use of large amounts of foreign fuels should be viewed as a short-term, stopgap measure to be utilized until domestic supplies can be developed.

IT'S OUR HISTORY, NOT THE PRESIDENT'S

Having had second thoughts, President Ford has revoked the agreement which would have given former President Nixon eventual possession of his administration's documents, including those notorious White House tapes.

The action still leaves unresolved, however, a question that goes back long before Watergate: Just who owns the materials generated by a president during his term of office?

The question was raised as early as the time of George Washington, writes John Berry in an editorial in the Library Jounal. The first president's papers were given over to "the less than meticulous custody" of Harvard historian Mason Weems, who treated the treasure as his own and took it upon himself to censor and bowdlerize Washington's sometimes salty language.

The setting up of special presidential libraries apparently began with Herbert Hoover and has increased in magnitude since then. The documentation from John Kennedy's truncated term, for example, is housed in a memorial at Harvard. LBJ's opulent library sits on a commanding knoll overlooking the University of Texas. Richard Nixon's admirers say they still intend to build one for him.

The wide dispersion of these documents makes research difficult for scholars, says Berry, as well as giving rise to occasional charges of "favoritism" by those in possession of them.

In additin to paying for the tax subsidies and the upkeep and staffing of these edifices, the public is often asked to pay again when an "authorized" history is marketed to libraries.

It is difficult to determine just when a man's public career, his letters, his phone calls or his intimate conversations with his aides become public property, Berry acknowledges. No one would require public ownership of truly personal and private materials which normally remain in the hands of the official or his family.

"But when he's doing our work, in high office to which we've elected him," he asks, "is there any reason why we, the public, should not own the documentation that remains?"

We have a national library in the Library of Congress and a National Archives, he points out. Surely these are the appropriate, safe and responsible repositories for the records of our public officials.

The public and its scholars should have access to this public information, Bery maintains. And they ought not to have to travel to a dozen different corners of America to get it, face restrictions on its use or live in fear that it will be improperly cared for by private institutions.

We need a national progarm to insure the collection and preservation of the record, and access to it, says Berry.

After all, it's our history, not the president's.

XXX

LIVING COSTS IN PERSPECTIVE

Hard-pressed consumers resent statistics that remind them of the comparatively small percentage of total consumer spending that goes for food. But those statistics hold a story that no fair-minded person can ignore.

Currently about 17.6 percent of consumer dollars in the U.S. are spent for food. This compares with 20 percent in Canada, 22 to 30 percent in Western Europe, 40 to 54 percent in Eastern Europe, including Russia, and up to 60 percent "In emerging nations." The expression "emerging nations" is a euphemism for nations that have yet to lift themselves above the age-old struggle to produce the bare necessities of life -- shelter, food and clothing. Money that in most other lands goes for basic necessities the American family spends on the accessories of a good life -- the boats, the cars, the television sets and household applicances by the millions that do menial chores for the family at the press of a button.

Naturally, we resent any threat to this state of affairs. The fact that inflation has put a higher price tag on necessities means, at worst, the trimming of a few luxuries. We are so far above the level of the less fortunate nations that there is no question of getting enough to eat. The only concern is the price. And, measured by any reasonable standard, that price still remains amazingly low.

PRETTY SCARY

The success of the health insurance industry in implementing government-financed programs efficiently, in broadening the availability and the coverage of private health care protection, and generally meeting public expectations is of extreme importance. This will determine, to a large extent, the degree of public confidence in the ability of the U.S. medical system to make high-quality health care broadly available at a price people can pay. That is the crux of public support for voluntary, fee-for-service, private medicine which in the U.S., despite what its critics say, has produced higher quality care for more people than any other system in the world.

The president of the nation's largest medical prepayment organization, providing health care protection for some 80 million Americans, in discussing the health insurance industry's response to consumerism has said, "The private health insurance industry. . . is perhaps subject to even more consumer scrutiny than other areas of private enterprise. This should not be unexpected. After all, health services are intensely personal. Consumers are concerned with emotional needs as well as the more objective factors of cost and quality." This industry spokesman's organization is composed of 70 local health care financing plans throughout the U.S. Each one is governed by a Board of Directors, and these have traditionally been composed largely of physicians. To give consumers a positive voice in the development and management of health care financing services, the membership of these Boards is rapidly being expanded to include educated and competent consumer representation. As an example, the Board of Directors of the Colorado plan now includes a Denver housewife, a labor union official, a state government executive, two educators and three corporate executives out of a total membership of twenty-five.

This kind of positive reaction to consumer needs, which in the case of medical services concerns each one of us, augurs well for the longevity of the voluntary, pluralistic character of U.S. medicine. This is good news for all of us. The built-in incentives for excellence of professional standards and quality of service which are part of U.S. medicine could never be matched in a monolithic government-run, national health insurance system. As a patient in such a system, you could expect to have no more control or choice in the matter of medical services delivered to you than, as a purchaser of an ten cent stamp, you now have over the quality of service delivered by the local U.S. Post Office. And that is pretty scary when you're talking about medical care for your family.

PRIMING THE PUMP

WASHINGTON — The big question everyone is asking is, "Can President Ford's tax cut turn the economy around?" Will the money he hopes to return to the taxpayer prime the pump of consumer spending and bring about the prosperity we all dream about?

I went out to poll several wage earners right after President Ford laid out his economic message and, if my sampling is correct, 1975 could be one of our best years.

Horace Cutweiler, a bus driver who stands to receive a tax rebate of $53, was the first one interviewed.

"What do you plan to do with your tax cut?"

"I'm going to take my family to Palm Springs for the winter."

"That's marvelous," I said.

"Originally, I was going to buy gold with it, but when you get a tax cut of his proportion you might as well enjoy yourself."

Mrs. Myrtle Oppenheim said that she and her husband figured to get back $120. She told me her husband, a fireman, wasn't home."

"Where is he?"

"He's at the boat show looking at Chris-Crafts. We've always wanted a yacht, but we never could afford it. But when we read about the rebate, we decided we wouldn't get the opportunity again. I told him not to buy anything that would require more than a crew of three."

Roger Montalban, a waiter, was not aware that he would get back $103 for 1974. At first he didn't believe me, but when I read him President Ford's message he became excited and went up to the manager of the restaurant and said: "I quit."

The manager was taken aback. "But, Roger, what are you going to do?"

"I am going to open my own French restaurant. With the tax cut, people are going to demand fine French food again and it would be stupid for me not to go into my own business at this time."

Ezra Donado, the night porter in my building, stands to gain $37, but he said the windfall would not change his lifestyle. "I might go back to Sorrento to see the old country, and I'd like to buy my parents a condominium in Fort Lauderdale, but I will continue working at my job. I assure you the money will not go to my head."

Ellie Cobey, a secretary, thought she might get back as much as $195. She refused to say what she was going to do with the money. But while we were talking she received a telephone call from Gstaad, Switzerland. I overheard the conversation. "Tell Miss Taylor I just came into some money and I am now in a position to buy her diamond ring. I will be sending Harry Winston over to appraise it. If it's everything Mr. Burton says it is, I'm sure we can conclude the deal."

The only one I met who said he was not expecting a tax rebate was Lyndon Littlefield, who makes $300,000 a year.

"Why won't you get a refund?" I asked him.

"Because I have all my money in tax-free bonds, and I don't have to pay any taxes for 1974. I think it's very unfair of the President to give everyone in the United States tax rebates except those who don't pay taxes. After all, we're people, too."

"It was probably an oversight they'll correct in the final legislation."

"They better," he said, "because my wife and I were counting on the money to put in a new tax shelter we would like to build."

Brickbat Gala: Ford Goes to A Fancy Hard Hat Party

WASHINGTON--I don't know exactly who Cohen is. But the president must have had the Library of Congress on overtime research for his Saturday night special--a series of Bob Hope-type gags for his stint as a stand-up comedian at the testimonial dinner honoring the swiftly upcoming 42-year-old Bob Georgine, president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Dept. (It's some three million strong and labor chief George Meany's home base.)

There were several thousand diners in the Hilton grand ballroom last Saturday night when President Ford walked in. He took the dais seat amidst the giants of the $138 billion-a-year industry. As someone observed: "All the counts and no accounts were there."

The President brought down the house which had paid $50 a plate for a steak dinner to hear Meany, Hubert Humphrey, and to honor the building crafts' powerful president Goergine. After Jerry Ford heaped peans of privileged praise on Meany and Georgine as "great labor leaders," and told them the White House door was always open to them because he needed them and the country needed them, he gave "young" Georgine a rare copy "Cohen's Complete Book of Gin Rummy."

The President opined that Bob has done for gin rummy what the Titanic did for ocean travel.

"The next time you play George Meany or Lane Kirkland you'll be able to lose much more convincingly," said the President who obviously had been briefed on the historic inner tensions of American labor especially on the axiom that if one plays gin or golf with George, one had better lose or lightning strikes.

I'm told the briefing on Georgine's rummy game came from none other than Meany himself who saw the President privately the day before to tell Mr. Ford how sharply they disagree on the economy, on the gas tax, on which comes first, inflation or recession.

Through all the raillery and Jerry Ford's effort to close his policy gap with labor's most powerful leaders were some serious hints of what's to come.

In the President's non-Eastern establishment style, he told it like he saw it and as he will put it across country for the next month or so.

"I say to the construction and building trades, let us construct and build rather than debate and denounce. Let's not get hung up on differences over details of the program now before the Congress," the President said.

"To put it another way, let's start the train in the right direction and then reconcile concerns over the fare and the speed and even over rebates on the tickets. But let's get started."

Then the President left. Sen. Humphrey rose and moaned that this was the story of his life. Always he had been the featured speaker and always, he said, just as he was about to speak, the strains of "Hail to the Chief" were heard and Lyndon Johnson walked in.

Lots of laughter. Then Meany followed with his trip-hammer clobbering of the President.

The labor chief said it was nice to know that one could go to the White House through open doors and not get one's name on a list. But President Ford's program "is disappointing." Meany charged that Ford's concern was still over inflation "when his concern should be over recession and he can't cope with recession."

Nor did the labor leader have kinder words for the Democrats whose program Meany called "a big nothing." Meany is for a reverse American boycott of Arab oil.

There could be no doubt Meany was declaring war on the President's policies. The labor leader was in traditional form. Labor was going to fight the program in Congress. Labor would take on the official Democratic leaders--some of whom already had wage-price control bills in the docket. This was not an audience before which Meany would simply get off a few unkind words as part of the evening's festivities. All but two of the 17 building and construction trades general presidents were there. So were such men as James S. Sprouse, executive director of the Associated General Contractors, leaders of the Council of Construction Employers, White House economic czar Bill Seidman, sundry Senators and government bureaucrats.

Further, on the afternoon of President Ford's State of the Union speech, Meany had broken the secrecy of the White House Labor-Management Committee sessions. Meany said that Ford had disregarded their advice by calling for a cut in corporate taxes. Meany rarely breaks such off-the-record confidences unless he's going for broke as he has with Presidents since his first encounter with Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Thus, for the moment it doesn't appear that Jerry Ford's program has much chance--what with the old-line Democrats, the new freshmen bloc and labor's powerful lobbyists against it. Point is, what are they united on?

Exactly what labor will settle for may have been spelled out by Meany during the one-hour session the two spent alone Friday afternoon in the Oval Office. For that we'll have to wait. The taping era is gone. Neither Jerry Ford nor George Meany ever breaks a four-eyes confidence.

But the evidence soon will be seen on the Hill. It all may get so deadlocked, vetoed and overridden that the nation will ride through the recession at $1 a gallon.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: President's Chief Adviser

By JACK ANDERSON
With
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — There has been the usual exchange of political potshots as the conservative Republican in the White House and the liberal Democrats on Capitol Hill draw up the battle lines for 1975.

But behind the scenes, the leaders of both parties are demonstrating an unusual willingness to work toegether for the good of the country.

President Ford has told subordinates that he is willing to compromise with the new Congress. He has pointed out, as a simple political reality, that the White House has lost power to Congress in the wake of Watergate. He wants his subordinates, therefore, to cooperate with Congress.

In the same spirit, House Speaker Carl Albert has urged Democratic leaers to put the national welfare ahead of their political welfare.

A tacit understanding has been reached that the President won't try to embarrass the Democrats on the spending issue, and the Democrats will work with him to find a formula that will hold down spending yet stimulate the economy.

The hostility of the Nixon era has been replaced by a determination to disagree without rancor and to seek workable solutions.

Footnote: The adviser who always has the last word with President Ford is his wife Betty. She read over the final draft of his latest TV address, for example, and disapproved of the word "stagflation." It was an "ugly word," she said, which only the economists understood.

The next morning, the President asked his staff to delete all references to "stagflation" from the speech. "Betty didn't like it," he explained sheepishly.

INFLUENCE FOR SALE: The lessons of Watergate made little impression upon former Congressman Roger H. Zion, R.-Ind., who wasted no time after his defeat setting up business as a lobbyist.

Before he left office, Zion sent out a solicitation letter on his congressional stationery to prospective clients touting his "20 years in the pharmaceutical industry" and his Capitol Hill connections.

"Since I will continue to be active in the Congressional Prayer Breakfast group, in the House gym, the Members Dining Room and on the House floor," Zion wrote, "I will maintain contact with my good friends who affect legislation."

He promised those who could use a good influence peddler that he "would unravel red tape, open doors, make appointments, work with the Administration or government agencies, influence legislation and assist in any other consulting service required."

Footnote: The former congressman is traveling and couldn't be reached for comment. A former aide hung up the phone on us.

WATCH ON WASTE: While most Americans are struggling to make ends meet, the Air Force is pouring $2.6 million into a project that they already have determined is unnecessary.

Here are the startling details:

In 1973, the Air Force was granted the funds to build a new electronics research laboratory in Rome, N.Y. But the Strategic Air Command put a hold on the project. The SAC commanders feared it might be too vulnerable to attack from nuclear submarines.

Later, they were persuaded to change their minds and to grant their approval. Construction began last August.

But in November, the Air Force abruptly announced that it was moving its research facilities to Massachusetts and Ohio. This could make the Rome facility surplus.

But it was too late to stop construction. The materials already had been ordered, and the penalty for halting the project would be $1.8 million. So the workmen are still at it, hammering the facility together, although there is no longer any need for it.

The Air Force maintains that the move will save $29.8 million over a five-year period. On the contrary, Rep. Don Mitchell, R.-N.Y., who represents the Rome area, contends the move will cost the taxpayers $70.2 million over five years.

But one thing seems certain: The Air Force will wind up with a $2.6 million installation it doesn't want.

MYSTERY DEED: An intriguing document arrived in our mail a few weeks ago. It was a deed, dated July 30, 1970, showing that James V. House of Summit County, Colo., had sold Richard Nixon of Washingtn, D.C., a parcel of Colorado property for "valuable considerations."

Had the former president invested in mountain property, which he didn't list in his financial statement? And where did he get the money?

Hours of detective work established that the deed was authentic. The land is a five-acre lot located about 15 miles southeast of Colorado Springs.

We had even more difficulty locating James V. House, but we found him. He had a dispute with the Internal Revenue Service, he told us, and couldn't find anyone to listen to his protest.

So he deeded his property over to then President Nixon. "I tried to get his attention every other way," House said, "so I thought this might do it."

It didn't work. The IRS was not impressed, and Nixon turned down the property.

PITFALLS IN SALT II

The American Security Council (ASC) — a private, Washington based organization devoted to the study of national defense problems — has presented in its Washington Report newsletter one of the most definitive analyses of the Vladivostok SALT II Agreement that we have yet seen. Its conclusions are sober and disturbing.

The analysis focused on three questions: 1. Did the SALT II Agreement open or foreclose the possibility of the Soviets' developing a first-strike capability against the United States? 2. Did the SALT II Agreement attain the parity required by the Jackson Amendment to the SALT I Agreement? 3. Is the SALT II Agreement verifiable?

On the first point, the Council recalled that the Secretary of Defense early last year dealt with the issue of a first-strike by pointing out that the four new Soviet ICBMs then being tested, if deployed and MIRVed, could give the Soviets as many as 7,000 one-to-two megaton warheads in their ICBM force alone. According to the ASC "The tremendous number and power of warheads which Soviet missiles could deliver on our ICBM sites, our bomber bases, and our submarines are so great that our ability to retaliate effectively after a surprise attack would be highly questionable. In summary, SALT II gives to the USSR the option of a first strike."

As to the question of parity, the ASC says that although SALT II does set a common level of 2,400 for the number of strategic delivery systems on each side and a common level of 1,320 as the number of missiles which can be MIRVed, there is no limit on an upper level of throw weight or on the total number of MIRVed warheads. This is where the heavier Russian missiles give them an advantage. At the time of SALT I the Soviet advantage was on the order of 4-5 to 1. The estimates for SALT II run roughly twice that high.

"In summary," says the ASC, "SALT II does not provide parity in strategic weapons, as required by the Jackson Amendment. It replaces the Soviet superiority in numbers of strategic weapons, as authorized in SALT I, with superiority in throw weight and numbers of MIRVed warheads. By either measure, the U.S. ends up in a secondary position."

Finally, regarding verification, the ASC analysis points out that although we have excellent reconnaissance satellite photography of the Soviet Union, there is really no way of telling what is on a missile once it has been placed in a silo and a cover put on top. Since there is no on-site inspection provided for in SALT II, we have really made an agreement based on trust. There is no way to know if the Soviets are complying with the terms of SALT II.

Before Congress approves the President's actions at Vladivostok, these are all points that require exhaustive, detailed discussion and debate. On the basis of what we know now, SALT II is not a good agreement and ought to be modified or rejected.

MISDIRECTED OUTRAGE

Outrage is a commonly-used word to describe consumer resentment toward rising food prices. It should be directed toward the acts of politicians who are striving, by every means, to block cuts in government spending. But most people seem to want the good thing that government dishes out without recognizing that they must be paid for.

Present-day prices of food and everything else merely reflect the inevitable collision between a nation that has accepted living on the cuff as a way of life and the immutable natural law that nothing is free. There is no mystery about rising prices in today's inflationary economy. What is amazing is that America's production and distribution system, from farm and factory to consumer, continues to turn out abundance such as the world has never before seen. Unprecedented, inflation-breeding government spending and the growing size and oppressiveness of our centralized bureaucracy would long ago have sapped the vitality of a lesser nation.

LOWER TEMPERATURES CAN NET COLD CASH

Americans who want to save energy or money or both this winer should start lowering their thermostats early. The odds are 14 to 1 that this winter will be colder than that of 1973.

The word comes from those who should know — the Commerce Department's National Ocean and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), the old "Weather Bureau."

According to NOAA;'s Environmental Data Service, some fairly dramatic fuel savings can be made for each degree the thermostat is lowered, ranging from 2 per cent per degree in Anchorage, Alaska, to 9 percent per degree in Orlando, Fla.

Interestingly enough, in terms of percentages the farther south you go the more you save. The actual quantities of fuel saved, of course, are much greater in cold areas because much more fuel is needed to heat buildings.

The calculations are based on a statistic called the "degree day."

Heating engineers have found that when the outside daily mean temperature (the high and low divided by two) is 65 degrees or higher, most homes and buildings need no heat to maintain comfortable indoor temperatures.

For each degree the daily mean temperature is below 65 degrees, you accumulate one heating degree day. Thus if the daily mean is 62, three degree days accumulate for the 24-hour period For each degree day, more fuel is required to maintain a comfortable indoor temperature.

A day with a mean temperature of 35 degrees — 30 degree days — would require twice as much heating fuel as a day with a mean temperature of 50, or 15 degree days.

FOREIGN OIL IN PERSPECTIVE

The survival of the United States as a sovereign power, with adequate military capability and economic strength, requires that policies are followed to encourage maximum prudent development of domestic petroleum resources.

In an appeal to President Nixon to resist pressures to permanently end oil import controls, Mr. Tom B. Medders, Jr., president of the 4,000 member Independent Petroleum Association of America, outlined some of he pitfalls of continued heavy reliance on foreign fuels. In addition to higher consumer costs and what he termed the "obvious security dangers" of over-dependence on foreign sources, Mr. Medders said that "within a decade or less" continuance of present trends would run the nation into a $25 to $30 billion annual trade deficit for imports of these fuels.

He added that the nation's fuel problems are not caused by lack of potential oil and natural gas resources in the U.S., but are due to governmental policies which have discouraged exploration and development. To correct this situation and expand domestic supplies, he urged "immediate" decontrol of wellhead gas prices for natural gas; raising crude oil prices to offset inflation and increased costs absorbed by the industry in recent years; and establishing "as a long-term goal" the extent to which the nation can safely become dependent on imported oil and natural gas.

The U.S. became a leader among nations by actively developing its resources. With reasonable regard for the environment, it must continue to do so. With goelogical surveys estimating that 55 percent of the discoverable oil, and 66 percent of the natural gas in this country are waiting to be found, use of large amounts of foreign fuels should be viewed as a short-term, stopgap measure to be utilized until domestic supplies can be developed.

IT'S OUR HISTORY, NOT THE PRESIDENT'S

Having had second thoughts, President Ford has revoked the agreement which would have given former President Nixon eventual possession of his administration's documents, including those notorious White House tapes.

The action still leaves unresolved, however, a question that goes back long before Watergate: Just who owns the materials generated by a president during his term of office?

The question was raised as early as the time of George Washington, writes John Berry in an editorial in the Library Jounal. The first president's papers were given over to "the less than meticulous custody" of Harvard historian Mason Weems, who treated the treasure as his own and took it upon himself to censor and bowdlerize Washington's sometimes salty language.

The setting up of special presidential libraries apparently began with Herbert Hoover and has increased in magnitude since then. The documentation from John Kennedy's truncated term, for example, is housed in a memorial at Harvard. LBJ's opulent library sits on a commanding knoll overlooking the University of Texas. Richard Nixon's admirers say they still intend to build one for him.

The wide dispersion of these documents makes research difficult for scholars, says Berry, as well as giving rise to occasional charges of "favoritism" by those in possession of them.

In additin to paying for the tax subsidies and the upkeep and staffing of these edifices, the public is often asked to pay again when an "authorized" history is marketed to libraries.

It is difficult to determine just when a man's public career, his letters, his phone calls or his intimate conversations with his aides become public property, Berry acknowledges. No one would require public ownership of truly personal and private materials which normally remain in the hands of the official or his family.

"But when he's doing our work, in high office to which we've elected him," he asks, "is there any reason why we, the public, should not own the documentation that remains?"

We have a national library in the Library of Congress and a National Archives, he points out. Surely these are the appropriate, safe and responsible repositories for the records of our public officials.

The public and its scholars should have access to this public information, Bery maintains. And they ought not to have to travel to a dozen different corners of America to get it, face restrictions on its use or live in fear that it will be improperly cared for by private institutions.

We need a national progarm to insure the collection and preservation of the record, and access to it, says Berry.

After all, it's our history, not the president's.

LIVING COSTS IN PERSPECTIVE

Hard-pressed consumers resent statistics that remind them of the comparatively small percentage of total consumer spending that goes for food. But those statistics hold a story that no fair-minded person can ignore.

Currently about 17.6 percent of consumer dollars in the U.S. are spent for food. This compares with 20 percent in Canada, 22 to 30 percent in Western Europe, 40 to 54 percent in Eastern Europe, including Russia, and up to 60 percent "In emerging nations." The expression "emerging nations" is a euphemism for nations that have yet to lift themselves above the age-old struggle to produce the bare necessities of life -- shelter, food and clothing. Money that in most other lands goes for basic necessities the American family spends on the accessories of a good life -- the boats, the cars, the television sets and household applicances by the millions that do menial chores for the family at the press of a button.

Naturally, we resent any threat to this state of affairs. The fact that inflation has put a higher price tag on necessities means, at worst, the trimming of a few luxuries. We are so far above the level of the less fortunate nations that there is no question of getting enough to eat. The only concern is the price. And, measured by any reasonable standard, that price still remains amazingly low.

PRETTY SCARY

The success of the health insurance industry in implementing government-financed programs efficiently, in broadening the availability and the coverage of private health care protection, and generally meeting public expectations is of extreme importance. This will determine, to a large extent, the degree of public confidence in the ability of the U.S. medical system to make high-quality health care broadly available at a price people can pay. That is the crux of public support for voluntary, fee-for-service, private medicine which in the U.S., despite what its critics say, has produced higher quality care for more people than any other system in the world.

The president of the nation's largest medical prepayment organization, providing health care protection for some 80 million Americans, in discussing the health insurance industry's response to consumerism has said, "The private health insurance industry. . . is perhaps subject to even more consumer scrutiny than other areas of private enterprise. This should not be unexpected. After all, health services are intensely personal. Consumers are concerned with emotional needs as well as the more objective factors of cost and quality." This industry spokesman's organization is composed of 70 local health care financing plans throughout the U.S. Each one is governed by a Board of Directors, and these have traditionally been composed largely of physicians. To give consumers a positive voice in the development and management of health care financing services, the membership of these Boards is rapidly being expanded to include educated and competent consumer representation. As an example, the Board of Directors of the Colorado plan now includes a Denver housewife, a labor union official, a state government executive, two educators and three corporate executives out of a total membership of twenty-five.

This kind of positive reaction to consumer needs, which in the case of medical services concerns each one of us, augurs well for the longevity of the voluntary, pluralistic character of U.S. medicine. This is good news for all of us. The built-in incentives for excellence of professional standards and quality of service which are part of U.S. medicine could never be matched in a monolithic government-run, national health insurance system. As a patient in such a system, you could expect to have no more control or choice in the matter of medical services delivered to you than, as a purchaser of an ten cent stamp, you now have over the quality of service delivered by the local U.S. Post Office. And that is pretty scary when you're talking about medical care for your family.

PRIMING THE PUMP

WASHINGTON — The big question everyone is asking is, "Can President Ford's tax cut turn the economy around?" Will the money he hopes to return to the taxpayer prime the pump of consumer spending and bring about the prosperity we all dream about?

I went out to poll several wage earners right after President Ford laid out his economic message and, if my sampling is correct, 1975 could be one of our best years.

Horace Cutweiler, a bus driver who stands to receive a tax rebate of $53, was the first one interviewed.

"What do you plan to do with your tax cut?"

"I'm going to take my family to Palm Springs for the winter."

"That's marvelous," I said.

"Originally, I was going to buy gold with it, but when you get a tax cut of his proportion you might as well enjoy yourself."

Mrs. Myrtle Oppenheim said that she and her husband figured to get back $120. She told me her husband, a fireman, wasn't home."

"Where is he?"

"He's at the boat show looking at Chris-Crafts. We've always wanted a yacht, but we never could afford it. But when we read about the rebate, we decided we wouldn't get the opportunity again. I told him not to buy anything that would require more than a crew of three."

Roger Montalban, a waiter, was not aware that he would get back $103 for 1974. At first he didn't believe me, but when I read him President Ford's message he became excited and went up to the manager of the restaurant and said: "I quit."

The manager was taken aback. "But, Roger, what are you going to do?"

"I am going to open my own French restaurant. With the tax cut, people are going to demand fine French food again and it would be stupid for me not to go into my own business at this time."

Ezra Donado, the night porter in my building, stands to gain $37, but he said the windfall would not change his lifestyle. "I might go back to Sorrento to see the old country, and I'd like to buy my parents a condominium in Fort Lauderdale, but I will continue working at my job. I assure you the money will not go to my head."

Ellie Cobey, a secretary, thought she might get back as much as $195. She refused to say what she was going to do with the money. But while we were talking she received a telephone call from Gstaad, Switzerland. I overheard the conversation. "Tell Miss Taylor I just came into some money and I am now in a position to buy her diamond ring. I will be sending Harry Winston over to appraise it. If it's everything Mr. Burton says it is, I'm sure we can conclude the deal."

The only one I met who said he was not expecting a tax rebate was Lyndon Littlefield, who makes $300,000 a year.

"Why won't you get a refund?" I asked him.

"Because I have all my money in tax-free bonds, and I don't have to pay any taxes for 1974. I think it's very unfair of the President to give everyone in the United States tax rebates except those who don't pay taxes. After all, we're people, too."

"It was probably an oversight they'll correct in the final legislation."

"They better," he said, "because my wife and I were counting on the money to put in a new tax shelter we would like to build."

Brickbat Gala: Ford Goes to A Fancy Hard Hat Party

WASHINGTON--I don't know exactly who Cohen is. But the president must have had the Library of Congress on overtime research for his Saturday night special--a series of Bob Hope-type gags for his stint as a stand-up comedian at the testimonial dinner honoring the swiftly upcoming 42-year-old Bob Georgine, president of the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Dept. (It's some three million strong and labor chief George Meany's home base.)

There were several thousand diners in the Hilton grand ballroom last Saturday night when President Ford walked in. He took the dais seat amidst the giants of the $138 billion-a-year industry. As someone observed: "All the counts and no accounts were there."

The President brought down the house which had paid $50 a plate for a steak dinner to hear Meany, Hubert Humphrey, and to honor the building crafts' powerful president Goergine. After Jerry Ford heaped peans of privileged praise on Meany and Georgine as "great labor leaders," and told them the White House door was always open to them because he needed them and the country needed them, he gave "young" Georgine a rare copy "Cohen's Complete Book of Gin Rummy."

The President opined that Bob has done for gin rummy what the Titanic did for ocean travel.

"The next time you play George Meany or Lane Kirkland you'll be able to lose much more convincingly," said the President who obviously had been briefed on the historic inner tensions of American labor especially on the axiom that if one plays gin or golf with George, one had better lose or lightning strikes.

I'm told the briefing on Georgine's rummy game came from none other than Meany himself who saw the President privately the day before to tell Mr. Ford how sharply they disagree on the economy, on the gas tax, on which comes first, inflation or recession.

Through all the raillery and Jerry Ford's effort to close his policy gap with labor's most powerful leaders were some serious hints of what's to come.

In the Presdent's non-Eastern establishment style, he told it like he saw it and as he will put it across country for the next month or so.

"I say to the construction and building trades, let us construct and build rather than debate and denounce. Let's not get hung up on differences over details of the program now before the Congress," the President said.

"To put it another way, let's start the train in the right direction and then reconcile concerns over the fare and the speed and even over rebates on the tickets. But let's get started."

Then the President left. Sen. Humphrey rose and moaned that this was the story of his life. Always he had been the featured speaker and always, he said, just as he was about to speak, the strains of "Hail to the Chief" were heard and Lyndon Johnson walked in.

Lots of laughter. Then Meany followed with his trip-hammer clobbering of the President.

The labor chief said it was nice to know that one could go to the White House through open doors and not get one's name on a list. But President Ford's program "is disappointing." Meany charged that Ford's concern was still over inflation "when his concern should be over recession and he can't cope with recession."

Nor did the labor leader have kinder words for the Democrats whose program Meany called "a big nothing." Meany is for a reverse American boycott of Arab oil.

There could be no doubt Meany was declaring war on the President's policies. The labor leader was in traditional form. Labor was going to fight the program in Congress. Labor would take on the official Democratic leaders--some of whom already had wage-price control bills in the docket. This was not an audience before which Meany would simply get off a few unkind words as part of the evening's festivities. All but two of the 17 building and construction trades general presidents were there. So were such men as James S. Sprouse, executive director of the Associated General Contractors, leaders of the Council of Construction Employers, White House economic czar Bill Seidman, sundry Senators and government bureaucrats.

Further, on the afternoon of President Ford's State of the Union speech, Meany had broken the secrecy of the White House Labor-Management Committee sessions. Meany said that Ford had disregarded their advice by calling for a cut in corporate taxes. Meany rarely breaks such off-the-record confidences unless he's going for broke as he has with Presidents since his first encounter with Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Thus, for the moment it doesn't appear that Jerry Ford's program has much chance--what with the old-line Democrats, the new freshmen bloc and labor's powerful lobbyists against it. Point is, what are they united on?

Exactly what labor will settle for may have been spelled out by Meany during the one-hour session the two spent alone Friday afternoon in the Oval Office. For that we'll have to wait. The taping era is gone. Neither Jerry Ford nor George Meany ever breaks a four-eyes confidence.

But the evidence soon will be seen on the Hill. It all may get so deadlocked, vetoed and overridden tnat the nation will ride through the recession at $1 a gallon.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: President's Chief Adviser

By JACK ANDERSON
With
Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — There has been the usual exchange of political potshots as the conservative Republican in the White House and the liberal Democrats on Capitol Hill draw up the battle lines for 1975.

But behind the scenes, the leaders of both parties are demonstrating an unusual willingness to work toegether for the good of the country.

President Ford has told subordinates that he is willing to compromise with the new Congress. He has pointed out, as a simple political reality, that the White House has lost power to Congress in the wake of Watergate. He wants his subordinates, therefore, to cooperate with Congress.

In the same spirit, House Speaker Carl Albert has urged Democratic leaers to put the national welfare ahead of their political welfare.

A tacit understanding has been reached that the President won't try to embarrass the Democrats on the spending issue, and the Democrats will work with him to find a formula that will hold down spending yet stimulate the economy.

The hostility of the Nixon era has been replaced by a determination to disagree without rancor and to seek workable solutions.

Footnote: The adviser who always has the last word with President Ford is his wife Betty. She read over the final draft of his latest TV address, for example, and disapproved of the word "stagflation." It was an "ugly word," she said, which only the economists understood.

The next morning, the President asked his staff to delete all references to "stagflation" from the speech. "Betty didn't like it," he explained sheepishly.

INFLUENCE FOR SALE: The lessons of Watergate made little impression upon former Congressman Roger H. Zion, R.-Ind., who wasted no time after his defeat setting up business as a lobbyist.

Before he left office, Zion sent out a solicitation letter on his congressional stationery to prospective clients touting his "20 years in the pharmaceutical industry" and his Capitol Hill connections.

"Since I will continue to be active in the Congressional Prayer Breakfast group, in the House gym, the Members Dining Room and on the House floor," Zion wrote, "I will maintain contact with my good friends who affect legislation."

He promised those who could use a good influence peddler that he "would unravel red tape, open doors, make appointments, work with the Administration or government agencies, influence legislation and assist in any other consulting service required."

Footnote: The former congressman is traveling and couldn't be reached for comment. A former aide hung up the phone on us.

WATCH ON WASTE: While most Americans are struggling to make ends meet, the Air Force is pouring $2.6 million into a project that they already have determined is unnecessary.

Here are the startling details:

In 1973, the Air Force was granted the funds to build a new electronics research laboratory in Rome, N.Y. But the Strategic Air Command put a hold on the project. The SAC commanders feared it might be too vulnerable to attack from nuclear submarines.

Later, they were persuaded to change their minds and to grant their approval. Construction began last August.

But in November, the Air Force abruptly announced that it was moving its research facilities to Massachusetts and Ohio. This could make the Rome facility surplus.

But it was too late to stop construction. The materials already had been ordered, and the penalty for halting the project would be $1.8 million. So the workmen are still at it, hammering the facility together, although there is no longer any need for it.

The Air Force maintains that the move will save $29.8 million over a five-year period. On the contrary, Rep. Don Mitchell, R.-N.Y., who represents the Rome area, contends the move will cost the taxpayers $70.2 million over five years.

But one thing seems certain: The Air Force will wind up with a $2.6 million installation it doesn't want.

MYSTERY DEED: An intriguing document arrived in our mail a few weeks ago. It was a deed, dated July 30, 1970, showing that James V. House of Summit County, Colo., had sold Richard Nixon of Washingtn, D.C., a parcel of Colorado property for "valuable considerations."

Had the former president invested in mountain property, which he didn't list in his financial statement? And where did he get the money?

Hours of detective work established that the deed was authentic. The land is a five-acre lot located about 15 miles southeast of Colorado Springs.

We had even more difficulty locating James V. House, but we found him. He had a dispute with the Internal Revenue Service, he told us, and couldn't find anyone to listen to his protest.

So he deeded his property over to then President Nixon. "I tried to get his attention every other way," House said, "so I thought this might do it."

It didn't work. The IRS was not impressed, and Nixon turned down the property.

C'ville chamber announces Man, Woman of the Year

CARUTHERSVILLE — Mrs. Jo Ann Manz, chamber secretary, was honored as the Woman of the Year and D. J. Merideth, presiding judge of the County Court, was honored as the Man of the Year at the seventh annual Chamber of Commerce awards banquet Saturday night in the National Guard Armory.

The awards to Merideth and Mrs. Manz were the highlight of the evening that also included the presentation of three certificates of merit, a speech by Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps, entertainment by the Caruthersville High School stage band and a dinner catered by the Caruthersville Lions Club.

The master of ceremonies for the affair was outgoing Chamber of Commerce president Byron Luber. Before the awards were presented, he mentioned that a change had been made in the awards program this year in that only two outstanding awards would be given instead of eight community leader awards. Also new this year was the justification statement, explaining why the winners received the awards.

Mrs. Manz received the Woman of the Year Award, Luber said, "because of her contributions to the community beyond the call of duty. She attended many, many meetings that I, as Chamber of Commerce President, either couldn't attend or didn't want to attend."

Luber also mentioned that Mrs. Manz was largely responsible for redecorating the chamber office, installing and keeping up to date the Chamber of Commerce bulletin board and keeping the community abreast with chamber activities through her column in the local paper called "Chamber Chatter".

Luber said Merideth was selected as Man of the Year for his leadership in many areas of county improvement. He cited as examples the presiding judge's leadership in the county landfill operation, improving surface drainage, renovation of the courthouse, efforts to secure a county park, paving county roads, building a maintenance shed on Highway 84 and efforts to get a port authority for Caruthersville and Pemiscot County.

Three certificates of merit were also given out by the chamber, one of them to an individual.

Mrs. Lee Dorroh received a certificate of merit for her planning and follow through of Praise God Sunday. The Caruthersville Lions Club received a certificate of merit for its efforts in collecting over $9,000 for the Crippled Children's Fund. The Caruthersville park board received a certificate of merit for park renovation.

Phelps congratulated the city on its attempt to land a Union Carbide plant for Caruthersville. "Although you didn't get the plant, I'm pleased you called on me to assist. The next time or two that you get a nibble, you might be able to land him," he said.

Phelps said the Department of Commerce "will help you update and redesign your promotional material to induce industry to locate in Caruthersville."

Phelps also outlined an "agressive approach" adopted by state government to help create new, permanent jobs for Missouri.

"First," he said, "we must have a strong domestic marketing program to encourage expansion by companies already in Missouri. More new jobs are created through expansion of existing industry than by attraction of new industry, Gov. Bond has asked present Missouri employers for suggestions on how we can encourage the development of new jobs here."

"Second, we must have an aggressive national marketing campaign to attract new industry to Missouri. Gov. Bond will be making trips to manufacturing centers throughout the country to encourage major companies with a potential for expansion to come to Missouri. We will initiate contacts with employers who could have an interest in our state, rather than waiting for them to seek us out.

"Third, we must have an international business development program to help industry in Missouri find new markets for their products overseas and to encourage foreign investment in our state. In 1973, the General Assembly overwhelmingly passed legislation to establish a foreign office for this purpose, and Gov. Bond and I have urged that this legislation be fully implemented and funded this year. Missouri is already the twelfth leading exporter of agricultural products in the country, but we can still expand our markets."

In this last area, Phelps said Caruthersville has a unique advantage. "You have the river," he said, "and I'm going to encourage the Department of Transportation to expedite its efforts to get a port authority for Caruthersville and Pemiscot County."

Graduate class to be offered in Sikeston

PORTAGEVILLE — The University of Missouri proposes to offer again this semester in two locations the graduate course, — "Legal Rights and Responsibilities of Citizenship in a Free Society". The course opened at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Kennett Junior High School and will start at 7 p.m. Jan. 27 at Sikeston High School.

The two-hour credit course will continue for 11 weeks. Sponsored by the Missouri Bar Association especially for social science teachers, the course is open to other teachers as well. One-half of the tuition fee of $62 is paid by the Missouri Bar.

Other courses scheduled to be held include Art Activities for the Elementary Teacher and Science for the Elementary School, both of which are needed for state certification.

The latter courses will have their opening sessions at 4:30 p.m. Jan. 28 in the Delta Center auditorium. Preregistrations are being received by county extension centers and Kathryn Kinnard, continuing education specialist, who may be reached at phone number 379-5431.

If there are enough participants for both classes, they will be held consecutively, otherwise simultaneous sessions will be conducted. The required 20 students must be confirmed for each class before Jan. 28.

Hayti housing units approval is canceled

HAYTI-A letter was read Monday night informing the City Council that the Department of Housing and Urban Development has canceled approval of 84 housing units for Hayti. No reason was given in the letter for the cancellation.

Housing Authority Director Bill Rhodes had told the council at the Nov. 18 council meeting that an application had been made for 96 units and that HUD had approved Hayti for 84 units.

In other council business, the council approved the appointment of Barry McKay, son of the late Police Chief Fritz McKay, and Wayne Brown to the positions with the Hayti police department. At the Jan. 7 meeting, policemen Harold Price and Jerry Davis had resigned.

City Treasurer Phil Bowen was instructed to check into the matter on returning interest on time deposits to the fund from which it originates. Bowen was also told to see that all of the money recovered from former Mayor Lee Roy Bain was returned to the fund from which it was taken.

Bain resigned as mayor of Hayti on April 4, 1973, when it was discovered that over $2,000 had been misappropriated in city funds. An audit conducted later disclosed that over $3,000 had been taken from city funds.

The City Council, on a motion by Alderman Byron Tinsley, voted unanimoully that all city employes are to get their city stickers free of charge.

The council instructed City Clerk Marcele Russell to issue a warrant in the amount of $18,827 to the United Missouri Bank of Kansas City in payment of public improvement bonds and interest due.

It was decided that insurance for the city-owned grader be renewed for liability only.

A letter was read from the Hayti park board asking that Mayor Fred Chaffin and the council take steps to dispose of the lion which is kept in the park. The recommendation was made because the park fund in unable to support the food and maintenance bills.

After considerable discussion, this matter was tabled.

Upon a motion by Alderman John Turnage, the council decided to set the deadline for purchasing city stickers without penalty on Feb. 15. City Marshal Kermit Ledbetter recommended that the ordinance pertaining to city stickers be checked into and possibly revised.

The council, by unanimous vote, decided that all firearms used by policemen be owned by the city. Any officer leaving the department may purchase the firearm with the proper permit and registration.

Frank Kinnison of Girardeau Contractors presented three bids to the council for the paving of North Ash, North Poplar and North Sycamore streets. A lengthy discussion followed. Turnage said the streets should be paved since the city had already spent considerable money on improvements to the streets.

Mayor Chaffin said that the council would consider the tree bids and a decision would be handed down at the Feb. 3 meeting.

City Clerk Marcele Russell, at the beginning of the meeting, was instructed to issue warrants in the amount of $11,174.50 in payment of bills payable and the Jan. 31 payroll.

HE HAD A REASON

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — A 300-pound Port Elizabeth man was acquitted on charges of failing to attend army camp after proving the Defense Force could not find a uniform large enough to fit him.

Man escapes Greenville jail

GREENVILLE — Police and highway patrolmen throughout Southeast Missouri are on the lookout for a convicted felon who escaped jail in Greenville Tuesday night while awaiting transfer to the State Penitentiary.

The man was identified as Ronald Duane Martin, 21, who had been sentenced to three years in custody of the Department of Corrections on an auto theft charge.

Martin's jailbreak is nothing new for Sheriff Luther Tibbs of Wayne County. The man had previously broken jail in much the same way.

At about 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Martin removed a concrete block from the Wayne County jail, tied an electric cord to a jail bar, then used the cord as a rope to lower himself three stories to the ground.

"This is the same way he escaped once before," a sheriff's office spokesman said.

No car was reported stolen in the Greeville-Wayne County area Wednesday, and the search for Martin is continuing.

Highway patrolmen were called into the search shortly after the escape was discovered.

Martin is described as about 5 feet four inches tall and weighing about 145 pounds. He is not believed to be armed, the sheriff's office spokesman said.

350 attend services for Missouri artist

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Funeral services were held Wednesday for Thomas Hart Benton, the famous Missouri landscape painter.

Benton died Sunday night in the carriage house-studioat his home shortly after he had finished another mural. He was 85.

Lyman Field, lawyer and longtime friend of Benton's, said in the eulogy that Benton "lived and worked with great vigor and purpose right up to the very end, with his hands, his mind and his heart.

"He disdained, without malice, high society, which he regarded as 'froth on a glass of beer,' but he deeply loved what he called 'the solid underneath layer' of common folk and his fellow man."

Field said that "only a very, very few people that he ever met failed to come under his spell—and most everyone was always warmed and raptured.

"The enchantment was no respecter of persons, and it ranged from little children to his celebrated friend, the late President Harry S. Truman."

The services were attended by some 350 persons.

Adult classes to be offered at Bell City

BELL CITY — Adult basic education classes will begin Monday at 6:30 p.m. at Bell City High School.

The classes are free and are open to anyone who does not have a high school diploma and wishes to get a better education. The subjects covered will be reading, writing, math, English, history and science.

Anyone interested should attend class Monday night or call Jerry Hatley at telephone number 733-4444.

C'ville chamber announces Man, Woman of the Year

CARUTHERSVILLE — Mrs. Jo Ann Manz, chamber secretary, was honored as the Woman of the Year and D. J. Merideth, presiding judge of the County Court, was honored as the Man of the Year at the seventh annual Chamber of Commerce awards banquet Saturday night in the National Guard Armory.

The awards to Merideth and Mrs. Manz were the highlight of the evening that also included the presentation of three certificates of merit, a speech by Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps, entertainment by the Caruthersville High School stage band and a dinner catered by the Caruthersville Lions Club.

The master of ceremonies for the affair was outgoing Chamber of Commerce president Byron Luber. Before the awards were presented, he mentioned that a change had been made in the awards program this year in that only two outstanding awards would be given instead of eight community leader awards. Also new this year was the justification statement, explaining why the winners received the awards.

Mrs. Manz received the Woman of the Year Award, Luber said, "because of her contributions to the community beyond the call of duty. She attended many, many meetings that I, as Chamber of Commerce President, either couldn't attend or didn't want to attend."

Luber also mentioned that Mrs. Manz was largely responsible for redecorating the chamber office, installing and keeping up to date the Chamber of Commerce bulletin board and keeping the community abreast with chamber activities through her column in the local paper called "Chamber Chatter".

Luber said Merideth was selected as Man of the Year for his leadership in many areas of county improvement. He cited as examples the presiding judge's leadership in the county landfill operation, improving surface drainage, renovation of the courthouse, efforts to secure a county park, paving county roads, building a maintenance shed on Highway 84 and efforts to get a port authority for Caruthersville and Pemiscot County.

Three certificates of merit were also given out by the chamber, one of them to an individual.

Mrs. Lee Dorroh received a certificate of merit for her planning and follow through of Praise God Sunday. The Caruthersville Lions Club received a certificate of merit for its efforts in collecting over $9,000 for the Crippled Children's Fund. The Caruthersville park board received a certificate of merit for park renovation.

Phelps congratulated the city on its attempt to land a Union Carbide plant for Caruthersville. "Although you didn't get the plant, I'm pleased you called on me to assist. The next time or two that you get a nibble, you might be able to land him," he said.

Phelps said the Department of Commerce "will help you update and redesign your promotional material to induce industry to locate in Caruthersville."

Phelps also outlined an "agressive approach" adopted by state government to help create new, permanent jobs for Missouri.

"First," he said, "we must have a strong domestic marketing program to encourage expansion by companies already in Missouri. More new jobs are created through expansion of existing industry than by attraction of new industry, Gov. Bond has asked present Missouri employers for suggestions on how we can encourage the development of new jobs here."

"Second, we must have an aggressive national marketing campaign to attract new industry to Missouri. Gov. Bond will be making trips to manufacturing centers throughout the country to encourage major companies with a potential for expansion to come to Missouri. We will initiate contacts with employers who could have an interest in our state, rather than waiting for them to seek us out.

"Third, we must have an international business development program to help industry in Missouri find new markets for their products overseas and to encourage foreign investment in our state. In 1973, the General Assembly overwhelmingly passed legislation to establish a foreign office for this purpose, and Gov. Bond and I have urged that this legislation be fully implemented and funded this year. Missouri is already the twelfth leading exporter of agricultural products in the country, but we can still expand our markets."

In this last area, Phelps said Caruthersville has a unique advantage. "You have the river," he said, "and I'm going to encourage the Department of Transportation to expedite its efforts to get a port authority for Caruthersville and Pemiscot County."

Graduate class to be offered in Sikeston

PORTAGEVILLE — The University of Missouri proposes to offer again this semester in two locations the graduate course, — "Legal Rights and Responsibilities of Citizenship in a Free Society". The course opened at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in Kennett Junior High School and will start at 7 p.m. Jan. 27 at Sikeston High School.

The two-hour credit course will continue for 11 weeks. Sponsored by the Missouri Bar Association especially for social science teachers, the course is open to other teachers as well. One-half of the tuition fee of $62 is paid by the Missouri Bar.

Other courses scheduled to be held include Art Activities for the Elementary Teacher and Science for the Elementary School, both of which are needed for state certification.

The latter courses will have their opening sessions at 4:30 p.m. Jan. 28 in the Delta Center auditorium. Preregistrations are being received by county extension centers and Kathryn Kinnard, continuing education specialist, who may be reached at phone number 379-5431.

If there are enough participants for both classes, they will be held consecutively, otherwise simultaneous sessions will be conducted. The required 20 students must be confirmed for each class before Jan. 28.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

Hayti housing units approval is canceled

HAYTI-A letter was read Monday night informing the City Council that the Department of Housing and Urban Development has canceled approval of 84 housing units for Hayti. No reason was given in the letter for the cancellation.

Housing Authority Director Bill Rhodes had told the council at the Nov. 18 council meeting that an application had been made for 96 units and that HUD had approved Hayti for 84 units.

In other council business, the council approved the appointment of Barry McKay, son of the late Police Chief Fritz McKay, and Wayne Brown to the positions with the Hayti police department. At the Jan. 7 meeting, policemen Harold Price and Jerry Davis had resigned.

City Treasurer Phil Bowen was instructed to check into the matter on returning interest on time deposits to the fund from which it originates. Bowen was also told to see that all of the money recovered from former Mayor Lee Roy Bain was returned to the fund from which it was taken.

Bain resigned as mayor of Hayti on April 4, 1973, when it was discovered that over $2,000 had been misappropriated in city funds. An audit conducted later disclosed that over $3,000 had been taken from city funds.

The City Council, on a motion by Alderman Byron Tinsley, voted unanimoully that all city employes are to get their city stickers free of charge.

The council instructed City Clerk Marcele Russell to issue a warrant in the amount of $18,827 to the United Missouri Bank of Kansas City in payment of public improvement bonds and interest due.

It was decided that insurance for the city-owned grader be renewed for liability only.

A letter was read from the Hayti park board asking that Mayor Fred Chaffin and the council take steps to dispose of the lion which is kept in the park. The recommendation was made because the park fund in unable to support the food and maintenance bills.

After considerable discussion, this matter was tabled.

Upon a motion by Alderman John Turnage, the council decided to set the deadline for purchasing city stickers without penalty on Feb. 15. City Marshal Kermit Ledbetter recommended that the ordinance pertaining to city stickers be checked into and possibly revised.

The council, by unanimous vote, decided that all firearms used by policemen be owned by the city. Any officer leaving the department may purchase the firearm with the proper permit and registration.

Attention Club Officers

To update the club calendar, I would like the club president or publicity chairman of any women's club or organization pertaining to women's activities in the Sikeston area to send in a list of regularly scheduled meetings. Please include the time, place, hostess and program, if any, for each meeting.

In addition, please include a current list of club officers, their addresses and telephone numbers. Also indicate the date when new officers are to be installed.

The Daily Standard appreciates any black and white photos properly identified of club happenings and also important news events.

Good coverage of club news depends on cooperation.

Mrs. Jewel Byrd

Mrs. Byrd turns 80

She's real "jewel"

By PAT LANDERS

RISCO — Mrs. Jewel Byrd of Risco celebrated her 80th birthday Jan. 4. Mrs. Byrd, perpetually young at heart, is one of Risco's most affable senior citizens, who greetss everyone with a smile and has a reputation for speaking only good of her neighbors.

Mrs. Byrd, much admired for her unique philosophy of life, gives credit to the practice she has of trying always to see the best in everyone and allowing everyone the privilege of a few faults.

Mrs. Byrd demonstrates to her family and friends a deep and abiding faith in God which, as she says, is her only "secret" to staying young at heart for all these years. She states that because of this faith she's never had to worry when confronted with life's rough spots -- she just leaves it up to the Creator to help her through each problem as it arises.

Thoughtfulness and unselfishness in the true sense of the word is a matter of principle for Mrs. Byrd, whose former neighbors describe her as a faithful friend who could always be counted on in times of sickness or death.

Mrs. Byrd was born Jewel Ruby and was married to the late Charles Byrd in 1911. The couple lived several years in the Grubbs, Ark., vicinity, and came to the Risco-Baderville area in 1938, accompanied by seven of their children.

The couple had eight children of their own: Donnie Woodruff of Newport, Ark.; Sidney and Perry Byrd, both now deceased; Marie Miller of Springfield; Lois Smelser and Roland Byrd of Lilbourn Route One; Pauline McGee of Portageville; and Joy Watson of Parma.

Among Mrs. Byrd's 28 grandchildren are 14 girls and 14 boys. She also has 24 great-grandchildren.

In addition to their own children, the couple reared nieces and three nephews whose parents died due to illness. They are Joe Foster of Charleston, Elzie Foster of Tuckerman, Ark., William Foster of Farmington and Pearlie Fletcher and Bertie Baker of Grubbs, Ark.

Mrs. Byrd was honored on her birthday with a surprise celebration at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Pearson of Risco. Guests arrived early and vehicles were concealed before the arrival of the guest of honor.

Following the birthday dinner, games were played and the group presented a gift money tree to Mrs. Byrd.

Present to join in the celebration were the families of her children: Mr. and Mrs. Roland Byrd and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Smelser, all of rural Lilbourn; Mr. and Mrs. George Watson of Parma; Mr. and Mrs. R. T. McGee and Mrs. Perry Byrd, all of Portageville.

Also present were the following grandchildren: Mr. and Mrs. Rick Smelser, Mr. and Mrs. Mike McGee, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry McGee, Janie Smelsser and Danny and Keith Byrd of Lilbourn; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Starnes of Malden, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Pearson of Risco, Gail LunBeck of Portageville; and Connie and Kim Watson of Parma.

In addition, the following great-grandchildren attended: Laurie, Valerie and Sonja Starnes of Malden; Mark and Angela LuLunBeck of Portageville; Mindy, Amy and Ward McGee of Lilbourn; and Christie and Susan Pearson of Risco.

Also present was Bill Swiney of Catron.

Zsa Zsa weds No. 6

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Hungarian-born actress Zsa Zsa Gabor took her sixth husband in a quiet civil ceremony at a Las Vegas Strip hotel, then commented: "I've really only been married twice."

Miss Gabor, 55, married wealthy California inventor and businessman John W. "Jack" Ryan here Tuesday night. It was Ryan's second marriage.

Miss Gabor said Ryan was the only man who could compete for her affections with the late George Sanders, her third husband. She said her other husbands were merely "father figures."

"If this doesn't work, I shoot myself," she said.

Ryan, 48, former head of the research division of Mattel Toys, supervised creation of the Barbie Doll. He also aided in the development of the Hawk and Sparrow missiles while working for the Raytheon Corp.

Miss Nall weds

Mrs. Edward A. Krei

Miss Barbara Ann Nall and Edward Allen Krei were united in marriage Dec. 28 at First Baptist Church. The Rev. Clyde Riddle officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Nall, 912 Allen Blvd., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Krei of Jackson, Tenn.

Brass candelabra with white tapers entwined with greenery and bows of burgundy and pink accented the candlelight ceremony.

MMrs. Tim Garner, organist, provided the wedding music, and Roger Tolliver sang, "The Lord's Prayer" and "One Hand, One Heart."

The bride, escorted down the aisle by her father, wore a formal gown of delustered satin and imported Valencienne's lace. The empire waistline was marked with narrow pointed lace, which also encircled the wide cuffs of the bishop sleeves. A detachable train swept from the waist into a full circular chapel length and was edged with the narrow-pointed lace.

Her three-tiered hand-rolled veil of imported silk illusion was attached to a profile cap of lace petals and velvet stephanotis sprinked and entwined with jewels. The bride's bouquet was a cascade of gardenias, white sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Ellen Allen of Olive Branch, Miss., was maid of honor. Mrs. James Carney of Millington, Tenn., Linda Bird of Nashville, Tenn., and Carol Krei of Jackson, Tenn., sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. Kara Settles of Dexter , cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

They wore gowns of burgundy knit with fitted bodices, slightly gathered skirts and long sleeves. The bodice bibs, collars and cuffs were overlaid with white Venise lace. A gathered edging of Venise lace highlighted the bib, collar and cuff overlay. They wore picture hats of burgundy and matching trim. Each woman carried cascades of burgundy roses, pink carnations and baby's breath entwined with burgundy and pink ribbons.

The flower girl, Lisa Jones of Atlanta, Ga., cousin of the bride, wore a floor-length gown fashioned like those worn by the bridesmaids. She carried a tiny basket of roses, carnations and baby's breath and was escorted down the aisle by the ringbearer, Lyndel Nall, cousin of the bride.

Donald R. Krei, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsmen were Ken Krei and Bill Krei of Jackson, Tenn., brothers of the bridegroom, and John Greer of Murray, Ky. Kevin Nall, cousin of the bride, served as junior groomsman.

Bob Depro of Sikeston, cousin of the bride, and the groomsmen served as ushers.

The men of the wedding party wore black tuxedos with white ruffled shirts edged with burgundy and black, accented with black velvet vests and velvet bow ties. The bridegroom wore a white rose and baby's breath boutonniere. The other men wore burgundy rose and baby's breath boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length gown of light blue with matching accessories. The mother of the bridegroom, chose a floor-length gown of light blue-green with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white roses with velvet trim and ribbons matching their gowns.

Cathy Settles of Matthews attended the guest book.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor.

The bride's table was covered with a white satin cloth trimmed in white lace and bows. The four-tiered cake centered the table and was topped with a cascade of burgundy roses, pink carnations and baby's breath. The cake was flanked by silver candelabra decorated with roses, carnations and baby's breath. The table held a silver punch bowl and coffee service.

The groom's table was covered in a white satin cloth and centered with a two-tiered chocolate cake decorated with frosted green grapes. Strawberry dainties were served from a silver tray.

Mrs. Harold Depro, aunt of the bride, was in charge of the reception.

Servers included Mrs. Lowell Collins of Union City, Tenn., and Mrs. Don Hale of Creve Coeur, cousins of the bride; Mrs. Bill Sharp, Mrs. Roger Tolliver and Mrs. Darrell Stewart of Sikeston; and Mrs. Gary Williams of Dallas, Tex. Lyndel Nall and Lisa Jones handed out thank you scrolls, secured with pink ribbons and rice bags from tiny baskets.

Out-of-town-guests were:

Dollie Oswald, Mrs. Marie Oswald, grandmother of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oswald of Memphis, Tenn.' Dr. and Mrs. William J. Oswald and children of Germantown, Tenn.; Kay Oswald of Birmingham, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. E.M. Jones of Atlanta, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jones of Anderson, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. James Beavers and Roz o Berkeley.

Mrs. Corrine Ayers and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Williams of Dallas, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Collins of Union City, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Don Hale of Creve Coeur; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Settles of Dexter; Mr. and Mrs. Mike Kinneman of Palatine, Ill.; Donald Patrick of Winston-Salem, N.C.; Mr. and Mrs. E.A. Holt of Milan, Tenn.; Arthur Holt of Boston, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Goodsen of Jackson, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. B.G. Allen and David Haraway of Olive Branch, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Bird of Matthews; Mr. and Mrs. Duke Vannerson and Terry of Paducah, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. George Hathhorn of Charleston; Mrs. Ken Krei of Jackson, Tenn.; and Jim Carney of Millington, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Krei hosted a rehearsal dinner for the wedding party and guests at the Ramada Inn.

Mrs. John Campbell and Mrs. Harold Depro, aunts of the bride, hosted a miscellaneous shower Sept. 27 in honor of the bride in the Campbell home.

Ellen Allen hosted a luncheon in honor of the bride Dec. 7 in her home at Olive Branch, Miss.

Mrs. Darrell Stewart hosted a personal shower in honor of the bride Dec. 26 at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Tolliver honored the couple with an open house for the wedding party, friends and relatives Dec. 27 at the Tolliver home.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald jR. Krei hosted a reception in honor of the couple Jan. 4 in the Krei home at Jackson, Tenn.

The bride graduated from Sikeston High School and University of Mississippi at Oxford, Miss., where she majored in speech pathology. She also attended Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau and was employed as a speech therapist by East Prairie R-2 School District.

Krei graduated from Jackson High School in Jackson, Miss., and earned a business administration degree at University of Mississippi. He is employed as a certified public accountant by Arthur Andersen and Co. in New Orleans, La.

Following a honeymoon in Las Vegas, Nev., the couple is living in New Orleans.

Ready Freddy demands intercourse thrice daily

Dear Ann Landers: I read the letter sent in by "Relieved" and it blew my mind. If she considers her husband a sex maniac, she should have mine.

"Relieved" complains about three times a week. What would she do if he demanded sex three times a day and more on weekends? I work in Fred's business and he is one of those husbands who insists on having lunch at home every day.

We have a teenager in the house and I can't hide the boy in a closet. It's all very embarrassing. Fred is after me morning, noon and night. Is there a solution to this problem? -- Tired

Dear Tired: I'm surprised you had enough strength to pick up a pen and write to me. Your husband should see a doctor and get some drugs to tame his libido. Something in his system is working overtime.

No woman should be expected to satisfy such a voracious sexual appetite. "Ready Freedy" needs professional help -- and you deserve a rest, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: My aunt took a course in palmistry (it cost her $200). She became fascinated when a woman read her palm and told her several things about her past that were true.

Aunt Belle is especially interested in lifelines. She was told by the palmist that her lifeline is unusually long and that she will probably live to be at least 100. Will you please tell me if anyone has ever done any scientific research on this? Or is it all phony baloney? -- Ink-Quizzitive

Dear Ink: The only study I am aware of was done by two professors at the University of Washington in Seattle. Drs. M. E. Wilson and L. E. Mather actually measured the lifelines of 51 cadavers. They used computers to calculate the variables, such as body size.

The research of these physicians revealed that there is no connection whatever between longevity and the length of a person's lifeline. Several of their oldest "subjects" had the shortest lifelines. (Sorry about Aunt Belle's $200.))

Dear Ann Landers: For years my husband has provided well for his family. Very well, in fact. We have two cars, a vacation home, and all the extras that go with affluence. Add to this lots of love and wonderful kids.

It's like a Cinderella story.

In spite of this I feel as if I'm going to explode. My husband's income is not all honestly earned. He has a job that requires out-of-town work, for which he gets paid overtime. The money he collects is far in excess of the time he puts in. In other words, he's padding the sheet. I know of instances when he has collected overtime for "out-of-town" work when he was right at home. He also uses his car for travel and is reimbursed for trips he doesn't make.

I'm living in style but my conscience is giving me hell. I've told him how miserable I am but he chops me off in mid-sentence. I know he won't stop. You're the only one I can turn to. Help me, please. -- Afraid

Dear Afraid: You and you alone must decide if you want to continue to catch hell from your conscience or give him the choice: Either he can go straight or continue on his crooked way alone.

Trolleys took their name from the power source, two overhead electric lines. Electricity was collected by a small carriage, or "troller," attached to a pole on the car roof.

Attention Club Officers

To update the club calendar, I would like the club president or publicity chairman of any women's club or organization pertaining to women's activities in the Sikeston area to send in a list of regularly scheduled meetings. Please include the time, place, hostess and program, if any, for each meeting.

In addition, please include a current list of club officers, their addresses and telephone numbers. Also indicate the date when new officers are to be installed.

The Daily Standard appreciates any black and white photos properly identified of club happenings and also important news events.

Good coverage of club news depends on cooperation.

Mrs. Jewel Byrd

Mrs. Byrd turns 80
She's real "jewel"

By PAT LANDERS

RISCO — Mrs. Jewel Byrd of Risco celebrated her 80th birthday Jan. 4. Mrs. Byrd, perpetually young at heart, is one of Risco's most affable senior citizens, who greetss everyone with a smile and has a reputation for speaking only good of her neighbors.

Mrs. Byrd, much admired for her unique philosophy of life, gives credit to the practice she has of trying always to see the best in everyone and allowing everyone the privilege of a few faults.

Mrs. Byrd demonstrates to her family and friends a deep and abiding faith in God which, as she says, is her only "secret" to staying young at heart for all these years. She states that because of this faith she's never had to worry when confronted with life's rough spots -- she just leaves it up to the Creator to help her through each problem as it arises.

Thoughtfulness and unselfishness in the true sense of the word is a matter of principle for Mrs. Byrd, whose former neighbors describe her as a faithful friend who could always be counted on in times of sickness or death.

Mrs. Byrd was born Jewel Ruby and was married to the late Charles Byrd in 1911. The couple lived several years in the Grubbs, Ark., vicinity, and came to the Risco-Baderville area in 1938, accompanied by seven of their children.

The couple had eight children of their own: Donnie Woodruff of Newport, Ark.; Sidney and Perry Byrd, both now deceased; Marie Miller of Springfield; Lois Smelser and Roland Byrd of Lilbourn Route One; Pauline McGee of Portageville; and Joy Watson of Parma.

Among Mrs. Byrd's 28 grandchildren are 14 girls and 14 boys. She also has 24 great-grandchildren.

In addition to their own children, the couple reared nieces and three nephews whose parents died due to illness. They are Joe Foster of Charleston, Elzie Foster of Tuckerman, Ark., William Foster of Farmington and Pearlie Fletcher and Bertie Baker of Grubbs, Ark.

Mrs. Byrd was honored on her birthday with a surprise celebration at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Pearson of Risco. Guests arrived early and vehicles were concealed before the arrival of the guest of honor.

Following the birthday dinner, games were played and the group presented a gift money tree to Mrs. Byrd.

Present to join in the celebration were the families of her children: Mr. and Mrs. Roland Byrd and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Smelser, all of rural Lilbourn; Mr. and Mrs. George Watson of Parma; Mr. and Mrs. R. T. McGee and Mrs. Perry Byrd, all of Portageville.

Also present were the following grandchildren: Mr. and Mrs. Rick Smelser, Mr. and Mrs. Mike McGee, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry McGee, Janie Smelsser and Danny and Keith Byrd of Lilbourn; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Starnes of Malden, Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Pearson of Risco, Gail LunBeck of Portageville; and Connie and Kim Watson of Parma.

In addition, the following great-grandchildren attended: Laurie, Valerie and Sonja Starnes of Malden; Mark and Angela LuLunBeck of Portageville; Mindy, Amy and Ward McGee of Lilbourn; and Christie and Susan Pearson of Risco.

Also present was Bill Swiney of Catron.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Hungarian-born actress Zsa Zsa Gabor took her sixth husband in a quiet civil ceremony at a Las Vegas Strip hotel, then commented: "I've really only been married twice."

Miss Gabor, 55, married wealthy California inventor and businessman John W. "Jack" Ryan here Tuesday night. It was Ryan's second marriage.

Miss Gabor said Ryan was the only man who could compete for her affections with the late George Sanders, her third husband. She said her other husbands were merely "father figures."

"If this doesn't work, I shoot myself," she said.

Ryan, 48, former head of the research division of Mattel Toys, supervised creation of the Barbie Doll. He also aided in the development of the Hawk and Sparrow missiles while working for the Raytheon Corp.

Miss Nall weds

Mrs. Edward A. Krei

Miss Barbara Ann Nall and Edward Allen Krei were united in marriage Dec. 28 at First Baptist Church. The Rev. Clyde Riddle officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Nall, 912 Allen Blvd., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Krei of Jackson, Tenn.

Brass candelabra with white tapers entwined with greenery and bows of burgundy and pink accented the candlelight ceremony.

MMrs. Tim Garner, organist, provided the wedding music, and Roger Tolliver sang, "The Lord's Prayer" and "One Hand, One Heart."

The bride, escorted down the aisle by her father, wore a formal gown of delustered satin and imported Valencienne's lace. The empire waistline was marked with narrow pointed lace, which also encircled the wide cuffs of the bishop sleeves. A detachable train swept from the waist into a full circular chapel length and was edged with the narrow-pointed lace.

Her three-tiered hand-rolled veil of imported silk illusion was attached to a profile cap of lace petals and velvet stephanotis sprinked and entwined with jewels. The bride's bouquet was a cascade of gardenias, white sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Ellen Allen of Olive Branch, Miss., was maid of honor. Mrs. James Carney of Millington, Tenn., Linda Bird of Nashville, Tenn., and Carol Krei of Jackson, Tenn., sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. Kara Settles of Dexter , cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

They wore gowns of burgundy knit with fitted bodices, slightly gathered skirts and long sleeves. The bodice bibs, collars and cuffs were overlaid with white Venise lace. A gathered edging of Venise lace highlighted the bib, collar and cuff overlay. They wore picture hats of burgundy and matching trim. Each woman carried cascades of burgundy roses, pink carnations and baby's breath entwined with burgundy and pink ribbons.

The flower girl, Lisa Jones of Atlanta, Ga., cousin of the bride, wore a floor-length gown fashioned like those worn by the bridesmaids. She carried a tiny basket of roses, carnations and baby's breath and was escorted down the aisle by the ringbearer, Lyndel Nall, cousin of the bride.

Donald R. Krei, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsmen were Ken Krei and Bill Krei of Jackson, Tenn., brothers of the bridegroom, and John Greer of Murray, Ky. Kevin Nall, cousin of the bride, served as junior groomsman.

Bob Depro of Sikeston, cousin of the bride, and the groomsmen served as ushers.

The men of the wedding party wore black tuxedos with white ruffled shirts edged with burgundy and black, accented with black velvet vests and velvet bow ties. The bridegroom wore a white rose and baby's breath boutonniere. The other men wore burgundy rose and baby's breath boutonnieres.

The mother of the bride wore a floor-length gown of light blue with matching accessories. The mother of the bridegroom, chose a floor-length gown of light blue-green with matching accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white roses with velvet trim and ribbons matching their gowns.

Cathy Settles of Matthews attended the guest book.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlor.

The bride's table was covered with a white satin cloth trimmed in white lace and bows. The four-tiered cake centered the table and was topped with a cascade of burgundy roses, pink carnations and baby's breath. The cake was flanked by silver candelabra decorated with roses, carnations and baby's breath. The table held a silver punch bowl and coffee service.

The groom's table was covered in a white satin cloth and centered with a two-tiered chocolate cake decorated with frosted green grapes. Strawberry dainties were served from a silver tray.

Mrs. Harold Depro, aunt of the bride, was in charge of the reception.

Servers included Mrs. Lowell Collins of Union City, Tenn., and Mrs. Don Hale of Creve Coeur, cousins of the bride; Mrs. Bill Sharp, Mrs. Roger Tolliver and Mrs. Darrell Stewart of Sikeston; and Mrs. Gary Williams of Dallas, Tex. Lyndel Nall and Lisa Jones handed out thank you scrolls, secured with pink ribbons and rice bags from tiny baskets.

Out-of-town-guests were:

Dollie Oswald, Mrs. Marie Oswald, grandmother of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oswald of Memphis, Tenn.' Dr. and Mrs. William J. Oswald and children of Germantown, Tenn.; Kay Oswald of Birmingham, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. E.M. Jones of Atlanta, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Jones of Anderson, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. James Beavers and Roz o Berkeley.

Mrs. Corrine Ayers and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Williams of Dallas, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Collins of Union City, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Don Hale of Creve Coeur; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Settles of Dexter; Mr. and Mrs. Mike Kinneman of Palatine, Ill.; Donald Patrick of Winston-Salem, N.C.; Mr. and Mrs. E.A. Holt of Milan, Tenn.; Arthur Holt of Boston, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Goodsen of Jackson, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. B.G. Allen and David Haraway of Olive Branch, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Bird of Matthews; Mr. and Mrs. Duke Vannerson and Terry of Paducah, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. George Hathhorn of Charleston; Mrs. Ken Krei of Jackson, Tenn.; and Jim Carney of Millington, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Krei hosted a rehearsal dinner for the wedding party and guests at the Ramada Inn.

Mrs. John Campbell and Mrs. Harold Depro, aunts of the bride, hosted a miscellaneous shower Sept. 27 in honor of the bride in the Campbell home.

Ellen Allen hosted a luncheon in honor of the bride Dec. 7 in her home at Olive Branch, Miss.

Mrs. Darrell Stewart hosted a personal shower in honor of the bride Dec. 26 at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Tolliver honored the couple with an open house for the wedding party, friends and relatives Dec. 27 at the Tolliver home.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald jR. Krei hosted a reception in honor of the couple Jan. 4 in the Krei home at Jackson, Tenn.

The bride graduated from Sikeston High School and University of Mississippi at Oxford, Miss., where she majored in speech pathology. She also attended Southeast Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau and was employed as a speech therapist by East Prairie R-2 School District.

Krei graduated from Jackson High School in Jackson, Miss., and earned a business administration degree at University of Mississippi. He is employed as a certified public accountant by Arthur Andersen and Co. in New Orleans, La.

Following a honeymoon in Las Vegas, Nev., the couple is living in New Orleans.

World news

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Sheikh Masoud Al-Sharif Al Hamdan of Saudi Arabia wants to buy the Alamo, the state-owned shrine to Texas independence, and present it as a gift to to his son.

"My son learned how to fly in San Antonio. He used to visit the Alamo and he loved it," the San Antonio News quoted the sheikh as writing a Houston lawyer. "Please contact the proper people and see if we can buy it. I want to present it as a gift to my son."

The lawyer said he would write the sheikh explaining the difficulty of his request. "I'll suggest to him to think of something else, maybe a Texas ranch, to present to his son," he said.

The son was in Texas under a program in which foreign officers train at American military bases. Four Air Force bases and Ft. Sam Houston are located here.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will undergo a three-hour routine physical examination at Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital on Saturday, press secretary Ron Nessen says. Nessen said Wednesday the only health problem Ford ever had was with his knees, the result of a football injury.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., probably will announce his candidacy for the 1976 Democratic presidenital nomination on Feb. 6, a spokesman for the senator says. The spokesman said Wednesday that Jackson "has blocked television time" on that date.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. William C. Cramer of Florida has been named general counsel of the Republican National Committee. Cramer, 52, who served in Congress from 1955 to 1971, was named Wednesday to replace Harry Dent, who resigned last month.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Interior Rogers C.B. Morton has been released from the hospital where he was treated for stomach pains. Morton enterted the Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital on Tuesday and a brief statement Wednesday said simply that he'd been released.

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be no serious drop in American-Soviet commerce despite the collapse of a major trade agreement between the two superpowers, U.S. officials say. However, the officials disagree with President Ford's judgment that trade with the Russians can be expanded much over the $900 million reached in 1974.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charging President Ford and the Democrats with inadequate economic remedies, America's labor leaders are putting together their own prescription for solving the nation's economic and energy problems. AFL-CIO President George Meany convened a rare meeting today of all 110 unions affiliated with the federation to hear reports of the recession's impact on workers in all sectors of the economy and to recommend a plan designed to "put America back to work."

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley says he cannot legally purge the agency's files of derogatory and unproven allegations against members of Congress. Kelley noted that the FBI, like all government agencies, cannot destroy official records without specific written approval from national archivist James B. Rhoads. Kelley gave no indication that he would seek such approval.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's legal defense fund is almost broke and is appealing to foreign contributors for help in raising $1 million to aid the former president. Rabbi Baruch Korff, head of the President Nixon Justice Fund, paid another $20,000 in legal fees Wednesday. It brought to $100,000 the legal fees paid by the fund since Nixon resigned Aug. 9, Korff said. And, according to Korff, it left a balance of $142,322 owed to a legal firm.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford and key Democratic congressmen are rushing into a battle over new oil import tariffs. Ford, directly challenging Congress, plans to sign his proclamation today for higher tariffs on imported oil beginning Feb. 1. And Rep. Al Ullman, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, called a hearing today for action on legislation to force a 90-day delay in Ford's tariff plan.

AP National Roundup

DETROIT (AP) — The nation's auto makers disclose mid-January sales figures today, the first to reflect the industry's new rebate program, and analysts predict they will show a substantial upturn. But no one is predicting the end of the longest auto sales slump since World War II. Sales for the Jan. 11-20 period were expected to be no more than 140,000 cars, compared with 155,004 in the same period a year ago. Volume then was the lowest for a mid-January in a dozen years due to the energy crisis.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — John A. Scali, the chief United States delegate to the United Nations, says he's going to launch a new drive for international action against terrorism now that the French government is upset about the situation. After more than two years of cold-shouldering U.S. efforts to get U.N. action against hijackers and other terrorists, France's pro-Arab government had a change of heart this week when Arab terrorists held 10 French people hostage overnight in an Orly Airport restroom.

World news

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Sheikh Masoud Al-Sharif Al Hamdan of Saudi Arabia wants to buy the Alamo, the state-owned shrine to Texas independence, and present it as a gift to to his son.

"My son learned how to fly in San Antonio. He used to visit the Alamo and he loved it," the San Antonio News quoted the sheikh as writing a Houston lawyer. "Please contact the proper people and see if we can buy it. I want to present it as a gift to my son."

The lawyer said he would write the sheikh explaining the difficulty of his request. "I'll suggest to him to think of something else, maybe a Texas ranch, to present to his son," he said.

The son was in Texas under a program in which foreign officers train at American military bases. Four Air Force bases and Ft. Sam Houston are located here.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will undergo a three-hour routine physical examination at Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital on Saturday, press secretary Ron Nessen says. Nessen said Wednesday the only health problem Ford ever had was with his knees, the result of a football injury.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., probably will announce his candidacy for the 1976 Democratic presidenital nomination on Feb. 6, a spokesman for the senator says. The spokesman said Wednesday that Jackson "has blocked television time" on that date.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. William C. Cramer of Florida has been named general counsel of the Republican National Committee. Cramer, 52, who served in Congress from 1955 to 1971, was named Wednesday to replace Harry Dent, who resigned last month.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Interior Rogers C.B. Morton has been released from the hospital where he was treated for stomach pains. Morton enterted the Bethesda, Md., Naval Hospital on Tuesday and a brief statement Wednesday said simply that he'd been released.

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be no serious drop in American-Soviet commerce despite the collapse of a major trade agreement between the two superpowers, U.S. officials say. However, the officials disagree with President Ford's judgment that trade with the Russians can be expanded much over the $900 million reached in 1974.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charging President Ford and the Democrats with inadequate economic remedies, America's labor leaders are putting together their own prescription for solving the nation's economic and energy problems. AFL-CIO President George Meany convened a rare meeting today of all 110 unions affiliated with the federation to hear reports of the recession's impact on workers in all sectors of the economy and to recommend a plan designed to "put America back to work."

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley says he cannot legally purge the agency's files of derogatory and unproven allegations against members of Congress. Kelley noted that the FBI, like all government agencies, cannot destroy official records without specific written approval from national archivist James B. Rhoads. Kelley gave no indication that he would seek such approval.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon's legal defense fund is almost broke and is appealing to foreign contributors for help in raising $1 million to aid the former president. Rabbi Baruch Korff, head of the President Nixon Justice Fund, paid another $20,000 in legal fees Wednesday. It brought to $100,000 the legal fees paid by the fund since Nixon resigned Aug. 9, Korff said. And, according to Korff, it left a balance of $142,322 owed to a legal firm.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford and key Democratic congressmen are rushing into a battle over new oil import tariffs. Ford, directly challenging Congress, plans to sign his proclamation today for higher tariffs on imported oil beginning Feb. 1. And Rep. Al Ullman, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, called a hearing today for action on legislation to force a 90-day delay in Ford's tariff plan.

AP National Roundup

DETROIT (AP) — The nation's auto makers disclose mid-January sales figures today, the first to reflect the industry's new rebate program, and analysts predict they will show a substantial upturn. But no one is predicting the end of the longest auto sales slump since World War II. Sales for the Jan. 11-20 period were expected to be no more than 140,000 cars, compared with 155,004 in the same period a year ago. Volume then was the lowest for a mid-January in a dozen years due to the energy crisis.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — John A. Scali, the chief United States delegate to the United Nations, says he's going to launch a new drive for international action against terrorism now that the French government is upset about the situation. After more than two years of cold-shouldering U.S. efforts to get U.N. action against hijackers and other terrorists, France's pro-Arab government had a change of heart this week when Arab terrorists held 10 French people hostage overnight in an Orly Airport restroom.

Braves hold off OHS rally

ORAN–The top seeded teams in the Scott-Mississippi conference tournament were victorious here Wednesday night as Kelly turned back the Delta Bobcats 74-66 in the junior varsity bracket and Scott Central whipped Oran 75-68 in the varsity division.

Coach Ed Street's KHS Hawks had to overcome a 20-14 first period lead by the Bobcats as coach Danny Kight's team showed surprising quickness and shooting ability.

Kelly's height advantage and coolness began to tell in the second period as the Hawks handled the press better and began to find the shooting range with David Dittlinger doing most of the scoring for Kelly. Dittlinger ended the game with 26 points.

Kelly had a 51-46 lead after three quarters but some cold shooting enabled the Bobcats to climb to within two points, 63-61, with 2:30 left in the game. Delta tried to press but Kelly was able to beat the defense for the easy layups and put the game away.

Delta featured a balanced scoring attack with Dave Duncan scoring 19, Randy Hoffman 18 and Mark Carnell scoring 17.

In the A Bracket the top seeded Scott Central Braves received a scare in the second half after enjoying a 46-35 halftime lead.

Oran came out hot in the third period and the Braves were cold in the shooting department. Oran's defense caused the Braves to take some poorly selected shots and Keith Campbell and Robert Taylor brought the Eagles back into contention. With six minutes left in the game, Oran had cut the lead to 60-57 as Scott Central lost some of the poise that built the first half lead. The Braves finally settled down with four minutes left and put the game on ice.

Kenny Bright hit a torrid pace in the opening minutes of the game and scored 20 points to tie for high game honors with Ricky Thomas also with 20. Robert Taylor pumped in 22 for the Eagles.

Thursday night action will find Illmo-Scott City playing Chaffee at 7:00 in the junior varsity game and at 8:00 the second seeded Kelly Hawks will play the third seeded Chaffee Red Devils in the varsity bracket.

LHS leads state poll

Five Southeast Missouri high school basketball teams are rated among the top 10 best in their class, according to the latest poll by the Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association.

The Lilbourn High Panthers maintained their stranglehold on the Number One position in Class 2A in the latest state-wide poll. The defending state Champions ran their record to 16-0 earlier this week and now own a 27-game streak without a loss over two seasons. Hot on the Panthers' heels, though, is second-ranked Linn with an identical 16-0 record. Cape Girardeau Notre Dame maintained its ranking in the same division, claiming the sixth slot on the strength of its 11-3 season's mark.

Other Bootheel teams landing in the elite of their respective state divisions are Kennett, ranked seventh in Class 3A and North Pemiscott of Wardell, grabbing the fifth spot in Class 1A, along with Advance who clung to the ninth position.

Eight of the top ten positions in Class 4A were dominated by teams from St. Louis and Kansas City. Columbia Hickman and Springfield Parkview were the only outstate quintets to make the state poll by pulling down the fifth and tenth spots respectively.

The rankings: CLASS AAAA

Panthers favored

MATTHEWS — It's Lilbourn, Matthews, Risco, and Parma, the top four seeded teams in the New Madrid County Tournament which starts a five-day run at the Matthews Gym on Monday, Jan. 27. Portageville, Gideon, and New Madrid round out the seven team tourney field, which also features a junior varsity bracket.

Lilbourn, undefeated on the season and already sole owners of the New Madrid County Conference crown, is heavily favored to repeat as Champions of the tourney they won handily last vear. The Panthers got the bye for the first round and don't play until Wednesday night at 8 p..m. against the winner of Monday's opening game between Parma and Portageville.

Lilbourn's JV squad is also seeded first in the "B" bracket, followed by New Madrid, Risco, and Gideon.

The Gideon JVs meet the Parma JVs at 7 p.m. Monday with the nightcap featuring a varsity tilt between Matthews and Gideon at 8:30 p.m. Semi-finals for both brackets are scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday with the Championships set for Friday night.

Rebs hold off Camels

ESSEX — The Rebels kept the Campbell Camels winless on the season here Tuesday night as Richland claimed a 71-54 victory.

Campbell jumped to a 14-13 lead in the first quarter, but never saw it again after that as Richland began to press in the second and outscored the Camels 20-9 to take the lead themselves for keeps. Sylvester Patterson led the Rebel rebound with 16 points, while Henson was high for the Camels with 13.

The Campbell JV managed to rake the Richland JV 66-42 in the night's opener. Parent took game honors for Campbell with 25 and it was Sides for the Rebels with 11.

Mules kick Pirates twice

BERNIE-A return match between Parma and Bernie Tuesday night saw the Mules gain a measure of revenge for an earlier defeat by downing the Pirates 77-64.

A 21-14 first period sent Bernie off and running, building its biggest lead of the night at 16 late in the third frame. The Pirates fought back but couldn't overcome Bernie's fifty-percent hitting from the field.

The Mules five starters finished the game, all in double figures as Joe Stuever sank 21, Dunn hit for 16, Sides and Ward tied at 15 apiece, and Moody posted 10. Ricky Barnes and Steve Gibson were high for Parma with 18 and 16 points.

Bernie claimed the Junior Varsity game also, downing Parma 57-47, with Roger Carson high for the Mules with 22 and Howell hitting for 25 to lead the Pirates.

Braves hold off OHS rally

ORAN--The top seeded teams in the Scott-Mississippi conference tournament were victorious here Wednesday night as Kelly turned back the Delta Bobcats 74-66 in the junior varsity bracket and Scott Central whipped Oran 75-68 in the varsity division.

Coach Ed Street's KHS Hawks had to overcome a 20-14 first period lead by the Bobcats as coach Danny Kight's team showed surprising quickness and shooting ability.

Kelly's height advantage and coolness began to tell in the second period as the Hawks handled the press better and began to find the shooting range with David Dittlinger doing most of the scoring for Kelly. Dittlinger ended the game with 26 points.

Kelly had a 51-46 lead after three quarters but some cold shooting enabled the Bobcats to climb to within two points, 63-61, with 2:30 left in the game. Delta tried to press but Kelly was able to beat the defense for the easy layups and put the game away.

Delta featured a balanced scoring attack with Dave Duncan scoring 19, Randy Hoffman 18 and Mark Carnell scoring 17.

In the A Bracket the top seeded Scott Central Braves received a scare in the second half after enjoying a 46-35 halftime lead.

Oran came out hot in the third period and the Braves were cold in the shooting department. Oran's defense caused the Braves to take some poorly selected shots and Keith Campbell and Robert Taylor brought the Eagles back into contention. With six minutes left in the game, Oran had cut the lead to 60-57 as Scott Central lost some of the poise that built the first half lead. The Braves finally settled down with four minutes left and put the game on ice.

Kenny Bright hit a torrid pace in the opening minutes of the game and scored 20 points to tie for high game honors with Ricky Thomas also with 20. Robert Taylor pumped in 22 for the Eagles.

Thursday night action will find Illmo-Scott City playing Chaffee at 7:00 in the junior varsity game and at 8:00 the second seeded Kelly Hawks will play the third seeded Chaffee Red Devils in the varsity bracket.

LHS leads state poll

Five Southeast Missouri high school basketball teams are rated among the top 10 best in their class, according to the latest poll by the Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association.

The Lilbourn High Panthers maintained their stranglehold on the Number One position in Class 2A in the latest state-wide poll. The defending state Champions ran their record to 16-0 earlier this week and now own a 27-game streak without a loss over two seasons. Hot on the Panthers' heels, though, is second-ranked Linn with an identical 16-0 record. Cape Girardeau Notre Dame maintained its ranking in the same division, claiming the sixth slot on the strength of its 11-3 season's mark.

Other Bootheel teams landing in the elite of their respective state divisions are Kennett, ranked seventh in Class 3A and North Pemiscott of Wardell, grabbing the fifth spot in Class 1A, along with Advance who clung to the ninth position.

Eight of the top ten positions in Class 4A were dominated by teams from St. Louis and Kansas City. Columbia Hickman and Springfield Parkview were the only outstate quintets to make the state poll by pulling down the fifth and tenth spots respectively.

Panthers favored

MATTHEWS — It's Lilbourn, Matthews, Risco, and Parma, the top four seeded teams in the New Madrid County Tournament which starts a five-day run at the Matthews Gym on Monday, Jan. 27. Portageville, Gideon, and New Madrid round out the seven team tourney field, which also features a junior varsity bracket.

Lilbourn, undefeated on the season and already sole owners of the New Madrid County Conference crown, is heavily favored to repeat as Champions of the tourney they won handily last year. The Panthers got the bye for the first round and don't play until Wednesday night at 8 p.m. against the winner of Monday's opening game between Parma and Portageville.

Lilbourn's JV squad is also seeded first in the "B" bracket, followed by New Madrid, Risco, and Gideon.

The Gideon JVs meet the Parma JVs at 7 p.m. Monday with the nightcap featuring a varsity tilt between Matthews and Gideon at 8:30 p.m. Semi-finals for both brackets are scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday with the Championships set for Friday night.

Mules kick Pirates twice

BERNIE-A return match between Parma and Bernie Tuesday night saw the Mules gain a measure of revenge for an earlier defeat by downing the Pirates 77-64.

A 21-14 first period sent Bernie off and running, building its biggest lead of the night at 16 late in the third frame. The Pirates fought back but couldn't overcome Bernie's fifty-percent hitting from the field.

The Mules five starters finished the game, all in double figures as Joe Stuever sank 21, Dunn hit for 16, Sides and Ward tied at 15 apiece, and Moody posted 10. Ricky Barnes and Steve Gibson were high for Parma with 18 and 16 points.

Bernie claimed the Junior Varsity game also, downing Parma 57-47, with Roger Carson high for the Mules with 22 and Howell hitting for 25 to lead the Pirates.

E. E. "Bus" Carr, well known sportscaster, was honored by his hometown Poplar Bluff folks recently when he was presented the first annual Jack Throckmorton memorial Sports Award for meritorious service to athletics in the city of Poplar Bluff. Making the presentation was Mrs. Daphene Throckmorton and Aubrey VanDover, a member of the Poplar Bluff Elks Lodge No. 2452 which sponsored the award.

"Bus" honored by Elks

POPLAR BLUFF-Just mention the name "Bus" in any sports circle around the area and you'll get reactions ranging from quiet awe and a head-shaking salute, to a full-length history on the myth and fact of the man, one of Southeast Missouri's venerable veterans of the airwaves and Bootheel sports in general.

For the uninitiated, the full name of the legend is E. E. "Bus" Carr, veteran sportscaster, who recently added to his already long list of achievements by receiving the 1st Annual Jack Throckmorton Memorial Sports Aware. The award was presented by the Poplar Bluff Elks Lodge No. 2452 on the occasion of their Sports Celebrity night and was made to Carr for his meritorious service to athletics in the City of Poplar Bluff. Aubrey VanDover, a member of the poplar Bluff Lodge, made the presentation along with Mrs. Daphene Throckmorton, widow of the late Jack Throckmorton, first exalted ruler of the local Elks Lodge for whom the award was named.

"So, 'Congratulations' "Bus" Carr from those of us who have heard your voice for a few or many years, listened to the legend built by your many friends, and who know and appreciate the dedication and service you have given to athletics during a worthy lifetime," a Daily Standard spokesman said.

NFL investigates drugs

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Solomon Freelon, a reserve guard with the Houston Oilers, told The Associated Press Wednesday night that he met the woman who claims to have delivered narcotics to numerous National Football League players and let her spend a night in his apartment.

But Freelon said she showed him no drugs and he accepted her story that she was a medical researcher from Ghana studying the relationship of water pollution to cancer.

"I didn't see any dope and she didn't have anything that looked like it carried dope," Freelon said. "That never entered my mind because she seemed too interested in water poisoning."

Freelon was the first NFL player to acknowledge publicly having had any contact with Roxie Ann Rice, the 19-year-old woman arrested Jan. 4 in St. Louis on charges of defrauding an innkeeper and of fraudulently using a credit card, reportedly stolen from Washington Redskins' defensive back Ken Houston.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat reported in today's edition that Ken Houston gave the St. Louis police a statement in which he, too, acknowledged having been in contact with Miss Rice.

Houston said a woman claiming to be from Africa stayed with him and his wife for two days in Reston, Va., after which a pocket calculator and a charge card were missing.

Houston said he met that woman through another who said her name was Pat, that she worked for a national magazine and that the publication wanted to do a story on him.

Miss Rice, who has allegedly passed herself off as a writer, doctor and medical researcher, was to undergo a lie detector test Thursday to evaluate her story, St. Louis police said.

A 39-page intra-departmental police memo in St. Louis quotes Miss Rice as saying she was recruited to transport briefcases containing what she believed to be narcotics to many NFL cities and that she became familiar with players and took orders and delivered drugs.

Police officials and spokesmen for a number of NFL teams have also refused to comment on the report or have denied knowledge of any of the woman's alleged activities.

Among the teams mentioned in the police memo are the Oilers, Redskins, St. Louis Cardinals, San Diego Chargers, Detroit Lions, Kansas City Chiefs and Cincinnati Bengals.

The NFL acknowledged Wednesday that an investigation is being made into these allegations but the league has refused to elaborate.

Babe Ruth honorees

Three young Sikeston athletes have been named to Babe Ruth Baseball's "Athletes of the Year" Annual for 1974. Recognized for their outstanding achievements in Babe Ruth organized baseball were 15-year-olds Dale Allen Deal, Larry Jackson, and Jim Limbaugh. These three young men have played baseball together, either on the same team, or opposite teams, or All-Star teams since they were nine years of age, all the way from Little League to just completing their time in Junior Babe Ruth this past summer. They will move up to Senior Babe Ruth in the summer of '75. Dale is the son of Charles and Norma Deal. Larry is the son of L. J. and Kay Jackson. And Jeff is the son of Wayne and Bobbie Limbaugh.

The "Athletes of the Year" program is a new dimension to Babe Ruth Baseball. It's a program that further promotes what is for the good of youth by nationally recognizing each Babe Ruth team's top players of the current season. The young men named as "Athletes of the Year" receive a coveted honor among the Babe Ruth ranks. It is an honor they have worked toward all season and has served as an incentive for personal excellence. Nominations for the "Athletes of the Year" program are made by Babe Ruth league presidents and managers. The resulting yearly annual will be on display at the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, New York.

"CUSTOM POLYSTEEL" RADIAL

A NEW 40,000 MILE RADIAL TIRE

Suppose you're driving along and it starts raining. Control of your car becomes a major concern – you can slip – can slide.

One of the main reasons it happens is water building up under your tires faster than your tires can squeeze it out. Believe it or not, this effect can actually raise your car off the roadway – so you are riding on a film of water, not the road.

It's called hydroplaning . . . and it's serious, even at the legal highway speed.

In a quick-stop situation during a sudden downpour, or when you pull out to pass, you can skid and lose control.

Goodyear's Custom Polysteel Radial – BIGFOOT – was designed specifically to help resist the danger of hydroplaning . . . and to help give you a "feel" for wet roads.

KEEPS ITS FEET EVEN IN THE RAIN!

"CUSTOM POLYSTEEL" RADIAL

Suppose you're driving along and it starts raining. Control of your car becomes a major concern – you can slip – can slide.

One of the main reasons it happens is water building up under your tires faster than your tires can squeeze it out. Believe it or not, this effect can actually raise your car off the roadway – so you are riding on a film of water, not the road.

It's called hydroplaning . . . and it's serious, even at the legal highway speed.

In a quick-stop situation during a sudden downpour, or when you pull out to pass, you can skid and lose control.

Goodyear's Custom Polysteel Radial – BIGFOOT – was designed specifically to help resist the danger of hydroplaning . . . and to help give you a "feel" for wet roads.

Officials expect no drop in trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be no serious drop in American-Soviet commerce despite the collapse of a major trade agreement between the two superpowers, U.S. officials say.

However, the officials disagree with President Ford's judgment that trade with the Russians can be expanded much over the $900 million reached in 1974.

"I would be surprised if trade took a dramatic drop, but there's little hope for much growth now," one State Department economist said.

There had been more than hope for expansion when American and Soviet officials signed the agreement in 1972; there were flat-out predictions of trade totaling billions of dollars.

That agreement called for a $722 million payoff of the Russian World War II Lend-Lease debt in exchange for a dropping of U.S. tariff discriminations and a promise to arrange major loans from the American Export-Import Bank.

But Moscow canceled the accord last week because Congress severely limited credits and demanded that Moscow guarantee freedom of emigration for Russian Jews as a condition for dropping the tariff restrictions.

Trade with the Soviets had been small before 1972, running from $157 million in 1969 to $218 million in 1971.

Following the agreement, U.S.-Soviet commerce jumped to $642 million in 1972 and vaulted to $1.4 billion in 1973.

The total tailed off to an estimated $901 million last year because of a drop in Soviet purchases of American grain, but was expected to rebound on the basis of Russia's need for machinery and technology.

That need still exists to some degree and will help keep trade levels at their current rate. Contributing to the situation are existing long-range contracts, Russian demand for available food grains and a U.S. desire to continue importing Soviet chrome, platinum and diamonds.

In fact, U.S. demand for these products has become a major factor in the trade relationship.

While the 1974 trade balance between the two countries favored the United States by a ratio of 1½ to 1, the margin has shrunk drastically over recent years.

The dive in trade balance is explained by administration economists in terms of a growing U.S. need for Soviet raw material, including petroleum products and a diverse Russian trading policy that has Moscow buying increasingly from other capitalist nations.

New ABC series leave something to be desired

NEW YORK (AP) — The opening segments of two new comedy series, "Barney Miller" and "Hot L Baltimore," are arriving on ABC-TV tonight and Friday night, respectively. They are so-so and awful, respectively.

"Miller," starring Hal Linden, concerns a New York plainclothes police captain, his family and his underlings at the 12th Precinct.

The series isn't a "Car 54, Where Are You?" but rather a "warm" sitcom with lots of heart. Heart is okay if you're opening a ventricle shop, but tonight's effort suggests aorta stood in bed.

(If you read that line aloud it may make sense.)

Things get off to a promising start when Mrs. Miller (Barbara Barrie), while preparing breakfast for the family, hears an item from her all-news radio station's morning diet of disaster: "Arab terrorists today blew up an Italian jetliner and in retaliation three Italian terrorists have blown up a Japanese restaurant."

Alas, things start sagging when Mrs. M., bugged with the hazards of New York life, urges her hubby to move to Montana and become a chicken farmer — or at least take the day off.

"Liz," he sighs, "I've heard the radio. Shootings, bombings — it's my busy season."

When he arrives at work, he's promptly held at gunpoint by a young Puerto Rican junkie who has been arrested for mugging and filched the gun from the arresting officer when brought to the police station.

"Boy, do I hate to start a day like this," Miller groans, but in due course he talks the junkie into a tearful surrender amid quick and generally limp commentary from the captain's nervous colleagues.

With better writing and a far brisker pace, the series might click. But right now, its only real asset is actor Gregory Sierra, who plays a Puerto Rican cop with a comic skill the show would do well to emulate.

"Hot L Baltimore," based on the hit off-Broadway comedy about a seedy hotel's inhabitants, is a king-sized disappointment, despite the work Norman Lear put in as a co-developer of this series.

It features a loveable multitude of wacko characters, among them two prostitutes, one Colombian, the other American, who spend their time rolling in and out of the lobby in search of a premise.

Friday night's premise concerns the Colombian hooker's impending marriage to a client, a "Hollywood producer" who sports a WIN button and proves to be seedier than the Burpee catalogue.

Lest this be considered racy, ABC plans to start the show by warning viewers that "parental judgment and discretion are advised," thus making it television's first PG-rated comedy.

But after inspecting the series' first two shows at an advance screening, I'd give "Hot L Baltimore" an NG (for No Good) rating.

Labor leaders favor tax cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charging President Ford and the Democrats with inadequate economic remedies, America's labor leaders are putting together their own prescription for solving the nation's economic and energy problems.

The program favors gasoline rationing and tax cuts.

AFL-CIO President George Meany convened a rare meeting today of all 110 unions affiliated with the federation to hear reports of the recession's impact on workers in all sectors of the economy and to recommend a plan designed to "put America back to work."

Meany has dismissed President Ford's economic program as "peanuts for the poor," and the plan offered by Democratic congressional leaders as "a big nothing."

The AFL-CIO will offer a program calling for Congress to to immediately stimulate the pass within 90 days measures economy.

Labor leaders favor tax cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charging President Ford and the Democrats with inadequate economic remedies, America's labor leaders are putting together their own prescription for solving the nation's economic and energy problems.

The program favors gasoline rationing and tax cuts.

AFL-CIO President George Meany convened a rare meeting today of all 110 unions affiliated with the federation to hear reports of the recession's impact on workers in all sectors of the economy and to recommend a plan designed to "put America back to work."

Meany has dismissed President Ford's economic program as "peanuts for the poor," and the plan offered by Democratic congressional leaders as "a big nothing."

The AFL-CIO will offer a program calling for Congress to to immediately stimulate the pass within 90 days measures economy.

What's the law?

The case of the 2-fisted psychiatrist

By JACK STRUASS, LL.B.

Betty was lightheaded in more ways than her blonde hair indicated. Consequently, she decided to undergo treatment with a psychiatrist who was reputedly well trained to cure the obscure. His method of treatment, however, struck Betty as being a little unusual, particularly when he began striking her during their weekly couch sessions, claiming that it was part of his treatment.

Pretty soon poor Betty not only had trouble thinking straight, she also had trouble sitting straight because of the bruises inflicted upon her by her psychiatrist. Finally, she sued him for malpractice.

"The guy's got to be nuttier than I am," she complained in court. "He didn't treat me, he assaulted me. After each session, I had more bruises than a spoiled tomato."

"Her charges are nonsense and show a layman's lack of understanding," responded the psychiatrist. "I'm the doctor and I treated Betty forher condition as I thought necessary. Furthermore, she hasn't produced one bit of medical testimony to show that my treatment was either wrong or improper. Therefore, her case has to be dismissed."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Betty to collect without medical proof that the psychiatrist's blows constituted malpractice?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that beating a patient as a treatment was "fantastic" and, inherently, suggested malpractice. The burden to justify his acts, concluded the judge, under the circumstances, was on the psychiatrist and not Betty to show that they were improper.

Bloomfield self-survey to be held

BLOOMFIELD — The week of Feb. 2-9 will be used for distributing, completing and picking up the community attitude self-survey.

If there are enough volunteer workers, the survey will be placed in all Bloomfield school district homes. This would include the communities of Acorn Ridge, Aid, Aquilla, Avert, Idalia, Leora and West Pleasant Valley

Persons living in these areas and wanting to take part in the project should contact Bill Aslin at phone number 568-2268.

Volunteers in Bloomfield should contact Frank Sifford at 568-4644. The survey is designed to find out the needs, opinions, attitudes and mood of the community.

Questions concerning everything from types of new businesses residents would support to belonging to a garden club or community choir. Some of the projects would need support by financing and others by community participation.

Mayor J. C. Newcomer and the City Council took an active part in forming the questioninaire and they are particularly interested in answers pertaining to city operations.

Several civic clubs are waiting for the survey to be tabulated before planning community improvement projects.

Business people, with answers supplied by the questionnaire, could know if they need to enlarge or improve their businesses. New businesses could possibly be started if the need was known.

Farmers could be helped by improving present farm businesses or adding new ones. This could cut down on delays and expenses from machinery breakdowns and livestock sickness.

The community could work on all of its problems with a better understanding of what the residents want.

Dr. Lamb

Still no cure for stroke effects

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — More than a year ago I suffered a massive stroke and heart attack. Today I am still paralyzed on my left side. My left arm and left leg refuse to function so I cannot walk and cannot bend my elbow. I take blood thinner pills for my heart and all manner of vitamins which are to heal my joints from the inside out.

Can you suggest any other remedies to rid me of my paralysis? Would liniments and salves help to limber my joints?

DEAR READER — It would certainly be wonderful if there were a way to solve the type of problem you have. When a stroke causes paralysis it means that the brain cells that controlled the movement have been damaged or destroyed.

The leg moves when you want it to move because of a complex electrical circuit. The nerve to and from the muscles in your legs all plug into a central switchboard in the brain. When you literally burn out the connections in the switchboard the circuit no longer works. Those connections in the switchboard are vital brain cells involved in the movements.

Brain cells cannot regenerate. A cut nerve in the arm can grow with time but cells in the brain cannot be replaced. There is some encouraging work demonstrating the ability of other brain cells to take over the switchboard function. In other words, the cells that used to handle just the information from the arm may be able to also handle the information from the left leg. In these instances a return to function is possible. We can't do this yet in humans. The nearest thing to that being done is reeducating people to speak when they have lost their speech from a stroke. The brain literally develops a new speech center with time, patience and much practice.

Your story illustrates why strokes must be prevented, if at all possible. The same disease that causes heart attacks also causes strokes. No one wants to be disabled, as you know.

Various exercises, heat and physical therapy can do a lot to prevent further loss of function in some cases after a stroke. These methods can also help some in learning to use new muscles to improve body function. But these treatments can't replace the damaged brain cells.

Salves and liniments may make your muscles feel better but don't expect them to solve your basic problem. The vitamins may be helpful to maintain good nutrition for you, but they won't do anything for the damaged brain cells that control your arm and leg either.

Incidentally, in some strokes people have temporary paralysis that clears as the initial swelling of the damaged brain cells disappear and the function of the remaining live cells is returned. So, no one should despair about a stroke until after a period of time has lapsed to permit full recovery.

Influenza virus reaches Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY — Official word that type A influenza virus has reached Missouri was given Tuesday by the state Division of Health.

Dr. H. Denny Donnell, state epidemiologist, reports influenza virus of the Port Chalmers variety has been isolated from throat specimens collected from six persons stationed at Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base near Kansas City. In addition, he said, the Division of Health laboratory has confirmed two other cases of type A influenza using blood specimens, one from a patient at Sweet Springs and one from a patient at Cape Girardeau.

The speciments from the Richards-Gebaur patients were submitted during the first week of January. The other patients were ill in December.

The wave of illness in Kansas City seems to have reached a peak in the second week of January, according to information from Dr. Richard Biery, director of health for Kansas City.

"Flu-like illness is being reported from wide spread parts of the state," Donnell said, "and apparently about what normally can be expected during this time of year."

Your story illustrates why strokes must be prevented, if at all possible. The same disease that causes heart attacks also causes strokes. No one wants to be disabled, as you know.

Various exercises, heat and physical therapy can do a lot to prevent further loss of function in some cases after a stroke. These methods can also help some in learning to use new muscles to improve body function. But these treatments can't replace the damaged brain cells.

Salves and liniments may make your muscles feel better but don't expect them to solve your basic problem. The vitamins may be helpful to maintain good nutrition for you, but they won't do anything for the damaged brain cells that control your arm and leg either.

Incidentally, in some strokes people have temporary paralysis that clears as the initial swelling of the damaged brain cells disappear and the function of the remaining live cells is returned. So, no one should despair about a stroke until after a period of time has lapsed to permit full recovery.

Influenza virus reaches Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY — Official word that type A influenza virus has reached Missouri was given Tuesday by the state Division of Health.

Dr. H. Denny Donnell, state epidemiologist, reports influenza virus of the Port Chalmers variety has been isolated from throat specimens collected from six persons stationed at Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base near Kansas City. In addition, he said, the Division of Health laboratory has confirmed two other cases of type A influenza using blood specimens, one from a patient at Sweet Springs and one from a patient at Cape Girardeau.

The speciments from the Richards-Gebaur patients were submitted during the first week of January. The other patients were ill in December.

The wave of illness in Kansas City seems to have reached a peak in the second week of January, according to information from Dr. Richard Biery, director of health for Kansas City.

"Flu-like illness is being reported from wide spread parts of the state," Donnell said, "and apparently about what normally can be expected during this time of year."

Today in U.S. History

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, January 23, the 23rd day of 1975. There are 342 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

In 1973, President Nixon announced an accord in the Vietnam War, with a cease-fire to begin on January 27th.

On this date — In 1542, England's Henry VIII took the title of King of Ireland.

In 1799, French troops captured the Italian city of Naples.

In 1920, the Dutch refused to surrender ex-Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany to the Allies for punishment as a war criminal.

In 1943, in World War II, British troops entered the North African city of Tripoli.

In 1932, Franklin Roosevelt announced he was a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

In 1964, Indonesia and Malaysia agreed to a cease-fire in their undeclared border war.

In 1968, North Korea seized the U.S. Navy ship, Pueblo, and held the 83 crewmen as spies.

Ten years ago: Premier Chou En-lai of Communist China called for a new United Nations which would, in his words, be "free of manipulation by American Imperialism."

Five years ago: Joseph Fielding Smith Jr., 93, was designated as President of the Mormon Church, succeeding the late David McKay.

One year ago: Israel moved tanks and troops from the West bank of the Suez Canal in its first step of military disengagement with Egypt.

Today's birthdays: Former Grand Duchess Charlotte of Luxembourg is 79 years old. French actress Jeanne Moreau is 47.

Thought for today: Always do right. This will gratify some people and astonish the rest — Mark Twain, American humorist, 1836-1910.

As it happened

"A LITTLE BIT TECHED"

Icarus tried, but his wings fell off. Da Vinci tried, but his machines wouldn't stay in the air.

In 1871, Alphonse Penaud, a Frenchman, tried, on a tiny scale. He made toy helicopters out of paper, cork, bamboo and rubber bands. And they flew. And some were brought to the United States.

An Iowa churchman bought one for his sons, Orville and Wilbur Wright, aged 7 and 11. In the house, outside in the yard, the boys flew the helicopter and tested it and tried to discover what made it soar, until they had it in pieces. They built helicopters of their own and found the bigger they made them the less they flew.

Through the years, they turned to other things.

Yet they never forgot the helicopter.

In 1900, the two brothers went to the beach at Kitty Hawk, N.C., because of its prevailing wind. Over three summers, they flew gilders, with wingspans of 16 feet, 22 feet and 32 feet, by hauling them to a huge sand dune called Kill Devil Hill and pushing them over the side. They controlled the gliders by moving vertical and horizontal vanes on their noses and tails — and by twisting their wingtips with wires.

Thursday, December 17, 1903. The Wright brothers haul their largest glider, more than 40 feet from wingtip to wingtip, out of its shed on the sand at Kitty Hawk. They rest its wingtips on two small benches. They place its skids on a small platform running on two wheels, one ahead of the other, along a single wooden rail. Fastened to the bottom wing of the glider is a four-cylinder gasoline engine the Wright brothers built at their bicycle shop in Dayton. It drives two propellers.

Having used his turn in an unsuccessful attempt three days before, Wilbur stays on the ground, standing near the right wing. Orville climbs aboard and settles his 145 pounds, stomach down, on the bottom wing beside the engine. He released a wire. The "flyer," as the Wright brothers call it, begins to move. Wilbur runs alongside, balancing it as it rolls forward on its trolley and its wingtips slide off their benches. As it reaches the end of the rail, it starts to climb ... two feet up ... four ... eight ... ten feet... until Orvile lands it back on the sand. Total distance flown: 100 feet. Total elapsed time: 12 seconds.

John T. Daniels, a lifeguard at the Kill Devil Hill Life Saving Station a quarter mile away, had seen a signal the Wrights raised to beckon anyone within five miles to come and watch. Daniels, two other lifeguards, a man from the nearby town of Manteo and a young boy from Nag's Head joined the two brothers at their camp. As the Wrights directed, Daniels put his head under a black cloth behind a camera they had placed on a tripod and aimed toward the end of the wooden rail. Like many, John Daniels had a private hunch the Wrights were "a little bit teched." Now, as man flew for the first time in a machine that lifted itself by its own power and sailed forward without any reduction of speed, Daniels squeezed a bulb that tripped the shutter. Later, he told his children he had been "astonished" at what he had photographed.

Eagleton bill would eliminate stamp abuses

WASHINGTON--Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., has introduced legislation designed to eliminate from the food stamp program those college students whose parents are financially able to provide their support.

Eagleton's bill would make ineligible for food stamps a student who (1) is at least 18 years old, (2) is enrolled in an institution of higher education, and (3) is a properly claimed tax dependent of a parent whose owr household is eneligible for food stamps.

'A "properly claimed" tax dependent is one who receives more than half of his or her support from the taxpayer claiming the deduction.

A similar provision, effective only during the current fiscal year, was included in the Agriculture Appropriations Bill enacted late last year. The Eagleton bill would make this provision a permanet part of the Food Stamp Act.

A number of surveys of college communities across the country have shown that thousands of college students have been receiving food stamps.

In introducing his bill, Eagleton said: "The food stamp program is probably the most equitable and effective federal program yet devised to meet the needs of low-icome citizens. Widespread abuse by those who are not truly needy can only serve to erode public support for the program.

"I believe it is incumbent upon those of us who have consistently supported the food stamp program and opposed efforts to cripple it to see to it that these abuses are eliminated."

FIVE BOOKS WIN AWARDS

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers has honored five books, instead of the usual four, this year with its seventh annual Deems Taylor Awards.

Judges were composers Gerald Marks, Billy Taylor, Vincent Persichetti, who is also on the Juilliard School faculty, and Dr. Hugo Weisgall, also a professor at Queens College.

Bond issues statement on property tax assessments

JEFFERSON CITY — Gov. Christopher S. Bond has released the following statement regarding property tax assessments:

"In recent days many citizens have expressed alarm over the prospects of increased property taxes resulting from legislation adopted in 1973 by the General Assembly that requires property to be assessed at 33 and one-third per cent of value, beginning this year.

I think it should be made clear that the establishment of assessments by local assessors does not establish the taxes to be paid by Missouri property taxpayers.

Taxes are determined by applying the assessed valuation to a tax rate and set by the officials representing local political subdivisions, such as, cities, counties, school districts, libraries, hospitals, ambulance and fire districts, etc.

There are statutory limitations on the maximum rates that can be set, but lesser rates can be established by the appropriate governmental body.

Missouri law (section 137.073 R.S.Mo. 1969) requires property tax rates to be reduced when the assessment goes up more than 10 per cent.

To assure themselves that proposed programs and services are needed and affordable, citizens should discuss community concerns and revenues needs with their local elected officials during budget hearings and before the establishment of tax rates for 1975.

Previously, assessors were directed by the State Tax Commission to assess at 30 per cent of real value as a means of equalizing valuations throughout the state.

In 1973, the Missouri Supreme Court ruled that the Missouri Constitution required assessors to use real value (100 per cent) for assessment purposes unless the General Assembly established a different rate.

The General Assembly then set by statute a rate of 33 and one-third per cent to be effective in 1975.

This figure reportedly was reached as a compromise with St. Louis area legislators, where the assessment was higher, and legislators from the rest of the state, where the assessment was lower.

Several letters have suggested that I, as governor, investigate the possibility of issuing an exxecutive order to delay or stop the new law. I do not have the authority to stop or grant permission to violate state laws.

It is understandable that none of us look forward to tax increases during these times of high unemployment, inflation, recession and economic unrest. I must repeat, however, that taxes do not have to increase as a result of increased valuations.

Also, it should be remembered that some property tax relief can be expected because of the repeal of the household property tax and intangible property tax, both effective this year.

110 students participate in Explorer Olympics

CAPE GIRARDEAU — More than 110 high school students from Cape Girardeau, Kennett, Steele, Caruthersville, Poplar Bluff, Puxico, Sikeston, Piedmont and Dexter participated in the second Explorer Olympics Jan. 10-12 at Southeast Missouri State University.

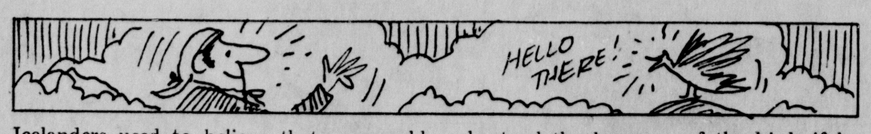

The 110 Explorers, representing 13 different Explorer posts, competed in 10 sport events during the three-day event. The first-place winners in each event receivved gold medals. Second and third place winners received ribbons provided by the Explorer Division of the Southeast Missouri Boy Scout Council, sponsors of the event.

Explorer post represented were: Post 89, an all girl post, and Post 189, Kennett; Post 97, Steele; Ship 92, Post 109, Caruthersville; Post 302 and Post 300, Poplar Bluff; Post 2 and Post 57, Cape Girardeau; Post 370, Puxico; Post 228, Sikeston, Post 65, Piedmont; and Post 200, Dexter.

The Explorers registered on Friday night and stayed in the Towers Cafeteria on the campus.

As it happened

"A LITTLE BIT TECHED"

Icarus tried, but his wings fell off. Da Vinci tried, but his machines wouldn't stay in the air.

In 1871, Alphonse Penaud, a Frenchman, tried, on a tiny scale. He made toy helicopters out of paper, cork, bamboo and rubber bands. And they flew. And some were brought to the United States.

An Iowa churchman bought one for his sons, Orville and Wilbur Wright, aged 7 and 11. In the house, outside in the yard, the boys flew the helicopter and tested it and tried to discover what made it soar, until they had it in pieces. They built helicopters of their own and found the bigger they made them the less they flew.

Through the years, they turned to other things.

Yet they never forgot the helicopter.

In 1900, the two brothers went to the beach at Kitty Hawk, N.C., because of its prevailing wind. Over three summers, they flew gilders, with wingspans of 16 feet, 22 feet and 32 feet, by hauling them to a huge sand dune called Kill Devil Hill and pushing them over the side. They controlled the gliders by moving vertical and horizontal vanes on their noses and tails — and by twisting their wingtips with wires.

Thursday, December 17, 1903. The Wright brothers haul their largest glider, more than 40 feet from wingtip to wingtip, out of its shed on the sand at Kitty Hawk. They rest its wingtips on two small benches. They place its skids on a small platform running on two wheels, one ahead of the other, along a single wooden rail. Fastened to the bottom wing of the glider is a four-cylinder gasoline engine the Wright brothers built at their bicycle shop in Dayton. It drives two propellers.

Having used his turn in an unsuccessful attempt three days before, Wilbur stays on the ground, standing near the right wing. Orville climbs aboard and settles his 145 pounds, stomach down, on the bottom wing beside the engine. He released a wire. The "flyer," as the Wright brothers call it, begins to move. Wilbur runs alongside, balancing it as it rolls forward on its trolley and its wingtips slide off their benches. As it reaches the end of the rail, it starts to climb ... two feet up ... four ... eight ... ten feet... until Orvile lands it back on the sand. Total distance flown: 100 feet. Total elapsed time: 12 seconds.

John T. Daniels, a lifeguard at the Kill Devil Hill Life Saving Station a quarter mile away, had seen a signal the Wrights raised to beckon anyone within five miles to come and watch. Daniels, two other lifeguards, a man from the nearby town of Manteo and a young boy from Nag's Head joined the two brothers at their camp. As the Wrights directed, Daniels put his head under a black cloth behind a camera they had placed on a tripod and aimed toward the end of the wooden rail. Like many, John Daniels had a private hunch the Wrights were "a little bit teched." Now, as man flew for the first time in a machine that lifted itself by its own power and sailed forward without any reduction of speed, Daniels squeezed a bulb that tripped the shutter. Later, he told his children he had been "astonished" at what he had photographed.

Eagleton bill would eliminate stamp abuses

WASHINGTON--Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., has introduced legislation designed to eliminate from the food stamp program those college students whose parents are financially able to provide their support.

Eagleton's bill would make ineligible for food stamps a student who (1) is at least 18 years old, (2) is enrolled in an institution of higher education, and (3) is a properly claimed tax dependent of a parent whose owr household is eneligible for food stamps.

'A "properly claimed" tax dependent is one who receives more than half of his or her support from the taxpayer claiming the deduction.

A similar provision, effective only during the current fiscal year, was included in the Agriculture Appropriations Bill enacted late last year. The Eagleton bill would make this provision a permanet part of the Food Stamp Act.

A number of surveys of college communities across the country have shown that thousands of college students have been receiving food stamps.

In introducing his bill, Eagleton said: "The food stamp program is probably the most equitable and effective federal program yet devised to meet the needs of low-icome citizens. Widespread abuse by those who are not truly needy can only serve to erode public support for the program.

"I believe it is incumbent upon those of us who have consistently supported the food stamp program and opposed efforts to cripple it to see to it that these abuses are eliminated."

FIVE BOOKS WIN AWARDS

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers has honored five books, instead of the usual four, this year with its seventh annual Deems Taylor Awards.

Judges were composers Gerald Marks, Billy Taylor, Vincent Persichetti, who is also on the Juilliard School faculty, and Dr. Hugo Weisgall, also a professor at Queens College.

Bond issues statement on property tax assessments

OUR BOYS WITH THE COLORS

JEFFERSON CITY — Gov. Christopher S. Bond has released the following statement regarding property tax assessments:

"In recent days many citizens have expressed alarm over the prospects of increased property taxes resulting from legislation adopted in 1973 by the General Assembly that requires property to be assessed at 33 and one-third per cent of value, beginning this year.

I think it should be made clear that the establishment of assessments by local assessors does not establish the taxes to be paid by Missouri property taxpayers.

Taxes are determined by applying the assessed valuation to a tax rate and set by the officials representing local political subdivisions, such as, cities, counties, school districts, libraries, hospitals, ambulance and fire districts, etc.

There are statutory limitations on the maximum rates that can be set, but lesser rates can be established by the appropriate governmental body.

Missouri law (section 137.073 R.S.Mo. 1969) requires property tax rates to be reduced when the assessment goes up more than 10 per cent.

To assure themselves that proposed programs and services are needed and affordable, citizens should discuss community concerns and revenues needs with their local elected officials during budget hearings and before the establishment of tax rates for 1975.

Previously, assessors were directed by the State Tax Commission to assess at 30 per cent of real value as a means of equalizing valuations throughout the state.

In 1973, the Missouri Supreme Court ruled that the Missouri Constitution required assessors to use real value (100 per cent) for assessment purposes unless the General Assembly established a different rate.

The General Assembly then set by statute a rate of 33 and one-third per cent to be effective in 1975.

This figure reportedly was reached as a compromise with St. Louis area legislators, where the assessment was higher, and legislators from the rest of the state, where the assessment was lower.

Several letters have suggested that I, as governor, investigate the possibility of issuing an exxecutive order to delay or stop the new law. I do not have the authority to stop or grant permission to violate state laws.

It is understandable that none of us look forward to tax increases during these times of high unemployment, inflation, recession and economic unrest. I must repeat, however, that taxes do not have to increase as a result of increased valuations.

Also, it should be remembered that some property tax relief can be expected because of the repeal of the household property tax and intangible property tax, both effective this year.

110 students participate in Explorer Olympics

2-BBL. V8 PICKUP.

SAVE ON GAS MILEAGE AND MAINTENANCE COSTS WITH A '75 CHEVY PICKUP.

Compared with a comparable '74 model, a '75 Chevy C10 350 2-bbl. V8 pickup can cost less to operate. We've added improvements such as High Energy Ignition and catalytic converter to help reduce the need for tune-ups. Recommended maintenance intervals have been extended, too, to help you save money. See us today for details.

Farmington man dies of gunshot wound

STE. GENEVIEVE, Mo. (AP) — A Farmington, Mo., man has died of a gunshot wound received as he broke into a Ste. Genevieve County family's home police said.

A spokesman for the Ste. Genevieve County sheriff's office said William Sweeney, 37, died here Tuesday of wounds received Jan. 16.

Officers said Sweeney apparently ran his car into a ditch on Missouri 32 and walked to the home of Clarence Bieser.

Bieser told authorities he answered a knock on his door and Sweeney entered, hit him and demanded his car keys.

Bieser said he ejected Sweeney from the house and locked the door. He said Sweeney came back to the door, kicked it open and entered a bedroom where Bieser was with his wife and two children.

Tractor hitch stolen from lot

NEW MADRID--New Madrid Tractor Co., located on Highway 61, reported to police today that a tractor hitch had been stolen off a tractor parked on the company lot.

Heart attack deaths begin to decline

MARCO ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — After a steady, deadly rise for more than 30 years, the rate of heart attack deaths among white men has begun to decline, a noted expert on heart disease prevention has found.

"I think we may be over the hump," Dr. Jeremiah Stamler of Northwestern University said Wednesday. He reported on a study of heart attack death rates since 1940.

"These findings have produced cautious excitement among heart researchers and others concerned with the mass onslaught of heart attacks in this country," Stamler told an American Heart Association science writers' forum.

"They suggest that at long last a start has been made in turning the flank of this great modern plague."

No single reason appears responsible. Instead it is a combination of factors that reflect basic changes in American lifestyles and improved medical treatment for heart patients and potential heart attack victims, Stamler said.

White, middle-aged men have been the most frequent heart attack victims. But women and non-white males also have experienced increases in heart attacks.

Between 1940 and 1958, coronary heart disease deaths rose more than 30 per cent in white men aged 35 to 64.

The sharp growth rate tapered off in the next decade, finally nearly leveling off at 463 deaths a year per 100,000 people for white men.

Researchers anxiously watched the high plateau in the death rates in the 1960s, fearing another dramatic rise might be around the corner.

But instead of the feared rise, a clear downward trend is seen — an 8.9 per cent decrease for white males between 1968 and 1972, the last year for which complete data has been studied, Stamler said.

The coronary death rate for white men is now 427 fatalities per 100,000 people, slightly below the 1950 level.

Similar but smaller death-rate decreases have been found for women and non-whites.

Bill encourages body donations

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Committee work in the Missouri General Assembly focused Wednesday on bills to encourage potential body donors, extend a half-cent transportation tax and establish a no-fault insurance system.

In addition, the Seante heard the introduction of bills to prohibit hitch-hiking, regulate conference athletic activities of public schools, create a commission to study the state's junior college system and raise the salaries of police chiefs in large cities from $28,860 to $33,488.

The House Insurance Committee heard conflicting versions of what the proposed no-fault legislation would do to car insurance rates.

Committee Chairman Walter Meyer, the bill's sponsor, said it would require insurance companies to drop their rates on liability coverage at least 15 per cent. But the Bellefontaine Neighbors Democrat added that the total rate might not drop that much since insurers would be permitted to charge more for comprehensive and collision insurance.

James P. Landis of the Missouri Bar Association said a study showed over-all rates would jump under no-fault instead of decline, rising 17 to 42 per cent.

Calling the proposal a "fraud on the public." Landis said no-fault was unconstitutional because it prevented a person from recovering damages for injuries he suffers, and he claimed the public would "overwhelmingly reject" the plan if they fully understood it.

The bill would prevent anyone from suing to collect damages for bodily injuries less than $500, but it would, for the first time, require all Missouri motorists to have car insurance.

The House Health Committee reacted favorably to the bill encouraging donors, which would require that a form appear on the back of drivers' licenses where a person could indicate if he wishes to donate all or part of his body to medical science.

Winesses told the committee the measure would boost the number of kidneys and eyes made available for transplants.

Dr. Frederick Whittier of Kansas City added that the increased number of donors and transplants would decrease the need for expensive kidney treatments and could save Missourians $40 million over the next five years.

Committee chairman Phil Snowden, D-Gladstone, said he sees no objections to the bill, but a committee vote on it will be delayed until technical questions about printing forms on licenses can be answered.

In a hearing before the Senate Municipal Corporation Committee officials from St. Louis and Kansas City urged approval of a measure calling for a two-year extension of the half-cent transportation sales tax.

They acknowledged the enabling legislation for the tax, which expires at the end of this year, was approved as a temporary aid to the metropolitan areas.

But they said they have been unsuccessful in finding any other way to assist the Area Transportation Authority in Kansas City and the Bi-State Transit Co.

A.J. Wilson, assistant to St. Louis Mayor John Poelker, agreed the tax is regressive, but said that has been offset because bus service has been improved while the fares have been lowered.

Kansas City Councilmzn Leon Brownfield said the tax is not the best, "but it's the only one that we have found that can solve the problems that exist."

Committee action on the matter is expected next week.

Drive may begin to reinstitute death penalty

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—If the Missouri Legislature does not appear ready to reinstitute the death penalty by spring, an initiative petition drive will be mounted to accomplish the task, the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee said today.

Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal, said three attempts to get the bill through the legislature are enough in taking that course toward reinstituting the death penalty.

And if it appears by late May or early June, less than a month before the end of the session, that the bill will fail again, Volkmer said the petition drive will be started.

"We'll know by then if it's going to pass," he commented, adding that details of any drive have not been worked out yet.

Although the aim of the drive will be to place a death penalty bill before the voters of the state, he said beginning the petition process before the end of the session could also put pressure on the state Senate to pass a mandatory death penalty law.

The judiciary committee has approved a bill similar to one passed by the entire house last year calling for death upon conviction of 11 types of murder and sent it to the floor for debate. But in the last two regular sessions, legislators have been unable to agree on the types of crimes to be punished by mandatory death.

Only last fall, Missouri voters for the second time in the state's history, enacted a new law through the petition process, putting revised campaign financing regulations on the books.

could take the entire patrol unit and put it to work on the problem and we still wouldn't have enough men to handle the complaints."

The undercover unit operates in total secrecy. "We don't even know when they are in the area," Lemonds pointed out. "When they have completed their investigation, they report to local authorities the findings of their probe."

The undercover unit worked in the New Madrid and Dunklin County areas recently, resulting in about a half dozen arrests in the Risco and Malden area.

"Parents are definitely concerned about the drug problem," Lemonds said. "We make many appearances before civic groups, and no matter what we go there to talk about -- we always end up discussing drugs."

Marijuana is so dangerous it threatens to turn millions of young Americans into brain damaged "semi-zombies" who may produce another generation of intellectual or physical cripples, a Senate investigation subcommittee chairman has warned.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D Mississippi, citing testimony by 26 doctors and psychiatrists from around the world about marijuana's effects, said the United States is caught in a "frightening" epidemic that has been spread in part by "a myth of harmlessness."

The epidemic, which Eastland said has begun to invade grade schools, is being made worse by a recent shift from conventional marijuana to hashish and liquid hashish, which are derived from different parts of the hemp plant and are eight to 10 times stronger than marijuana.

The question — what is wrong with taking drugs as long as no one else is hurt by doing so — is frequently asked by marijuana users.

It is difficult for an individual to do something to himself that has consequences only to himself. Inevitably, the act will have an impact upon those who are close to him, upon those who are dependent on him and upon society.

To "drop out" via drugs means that the person may become dependent upon the social structure for a variety of public services. Those who become physically or emotionally disabled as a result of drug misuse are generally totally dependent upon society for their subsistence.

Many other questions about drug abuse will be discussed in later articles dealing with local law enforcement officials, school officials, juvenile officers, judges, prosecutors and drug users.

Floodwater outlet to be discussed

MEMPHIS, Tenn. The Memphis District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has announced that a public meeting for consideration of a plan to provide an improved outlet for floodwaters through the Inter-River Drainage District Levee to the St. Francis River will be held at 1:30 p.m. Feb. 4 in room 203 of the Butler County Courthouse in Poplar Bluff, Mo.

The purpose of the public meeting is to present the results of studies to determine the advisability of constructing an improved outlet for damaging floodwaters through the Inter-River Drainage District Levee to the St. Francis River.

The proposed plan of improvement provides for construction of a new outlet ditch from Ditch No. 30 to the levee and for construction of a new gated outlet structure through the levee to alleviate flooding upstream from the existing outlet.

The proposed project would reduce flows along the downstream reaches of Ditch No. 30 by diverting flood flows from Ditch No. 30 to the St. Francis River approximately three and one-half miles upstream from the existing culvert.

False advertising in New Hampshire

By Tom Tiede

CLAREMONT, N.H. — (NEA) — Ever since New Hampshire changed its license plate slogan from a gentle "Scenic" to a boisterous "Live Free Or Die", George Maynard has stewed. Intently religious (Jehovah's Witness), he has felt the new motto anti-Christian in principle. "I believe man lives forever and the state has no right to say otherwise."

So, six months ago Maynard covered up that portion of his plates with masking tape. Kids would occasionally pull the tape off, forcing Maynard to eventually punch out the "Or Die" portion with a nail. Otherwise, he was content — until recently when he was stopped by the police and given an arrest summons for "defacing" the plate.

"That's when it began," Maynard says, "and it hasn't stopped."

Maynard admitted his guilt in court and because he could not, in conscience, pay a fine, his sentence was suspended.

Police, however, then extracted their own kind of retribution. "When I left the court I saw this officer confiscating my plates. He didn't ask permission, he didn't tell me why, he just did it. I asked him how I'd get home and he said it was my problem. He acted like I was some kind of louse."

Twenty miles from his living room, Maynard thus decided to make cardboard plates for the drive home. He didn't get far. "The local police radioed ahead for the State Patrol. They stopped me, tore off my cardboard plates and gave me another summons. That officer, too, was unpleasant; I was made to feel almost un-American, if you know what I mean."

In fact, Maynard is hardly un-American. Not one of the "hippie freaks" the locals recount in disgust, Maynard, 42, is married, has two children, owns a home, and earns steady income from a printing job. "I don't have long hair, I don't live different from anyone. But, you know, in this state patriotism is everything. If you're even suspected of not toeing the line the police can be very unfriendly."

He's right, the state is superpatriotic. Cops carry flag decals, flag pins and flag shoulder patches. One fellow in the state legislature has in years past introduced a bill requiring every able-bodied man to carry a rifle and 500 rounds of ammunition (Communists are coming).

As for the license plate motto, it was adopted to answer the national protests of the Vietnam war. Proponents said it reflected state thinking and should be an influence to people across the nation.

Not everybody here, however, feels that bluster is synonymous with love of country and so the license plate thing has had numerous detractors. Most critics think it's "inappropriate," others believe it offers an extremist viewpoint, a few have refused to suffer it at all. Enter George Maynard. What it all boils down to, he says, is that "the motto is not only offensive, it's hypocritical. I'm certainly not living very free if I can't practice my religious beliefs."

His point seems valid. And though his battle is small beans in the present affairs of men, there are large questions involved. No doubt Maynard went too far in punching out a part of the motto, the masking tape would have sufficed. But given his religious objection, does he not have the right to protect his values? Even without the religious aspects of the equation, one wonders at the wisdom of a state forcing any citizen to advertise an unwanted slogan.

Maine's "Vacationland" is harmless enough, even New Jersey's "Garden State" slogan is, if phony, at least unoffensive — but "Live Free Or Die?" That's as foreign to some as if California would adopt "If It Feels Good, Do It."

More disturbing than this, though, in the Maynard case, is the inflexibility of the system which has made his life worrisome. The law is the law is the law. Early on, officials should have divined the idiocy of this kind of persecution and granted the perpetrator his simple desires. What's the harm? The man left the plate identification intact and did not alter its useful purpose. Yet, George Maynard now has a criminal record and is thought of as a town kook.

Today, Maynard, following principle, is walking. So are his wife and children. "I'm worried that my wife will have to quit her job, because she needs a car. She sells for a jewelry company." He has applied to the state for permission to buy commercial plates which do not carry the slogan but his chances are slim. He has also pointed out to officials that plates on state-owned vehicles are devoid of the motto. How come? Yet the objection has been overruled with silence.

And so his future is uncertain. He says he may have to move away somewhere. Because he can't "Live Free" in the state that advertises it.

Farmington man dies of gunshot wound

STE. GENEVIEVE, Mo. (AP) — A Farmington, Mo., man has died of a gunshot wound received as he broke into a Ste. Genevieve County family's home police said.

A spokesman for the Ste. Genevieve County sheriff's office said William Sweeney, 37, died here Tuesday of wounds received Jan. 16.

Officers said Sweeney apparently ran his car into a ditch on Missouri 32 and walked to the home of Clarence Bieser.

Bieser told authorities he answered a knock on his door and Sweeney entered, hit him and demanded his car keys.

Bieser said he ejected Sweeney from the house and locked the door. He said Sweeney came back to the door, kicked it open and entered a bedroom where Bieser was with his wife and two children.

Tractor hitch stolen from lot

NEW MADRID--New Madrid Tractor Co., located on Highway 61, reported to police today that a tractor hitch had been stolen off a tractor parked on the company lot.

Heart attack deaths begin to decline

MARCO ISLAND, Fla. (AP) — After a steady, deadly rise for more than 30 years, the rate of heart attack deaths among white men has begun to decline, a noted expert on heart disease prevention has found.

"I think we may be over the hump," Dr. Jeremiah Stamler of Northwestern University said Wednesday. He reported on a study of heart attack death rates since 1940.

"These findings have produced cautious excitement among heart researchers and others concerned with the mass onslaught of heart attacks in this country," Stamler told an American Heart Association science writers' forum.

"They suggest that at long last a start has been made in turning the flank of this great modern plague."

No single reason appears responsible. Instead it is a combination of factors that reflect basic changes in American lifestyles and improved medical treatment for heart patients and potential heart attack victims, Stamler said.

White, middle-aged men have been the most frequent heart attack victims. But women and non-white males also have experienced increases in heart attacks.

Between 1940 and 1958, coronary heart disease deaths rose more than 30 per cent in white men aged 35 to 64.

The sharp growth rate tapered off in the next decade, finally nearly leveling off at 463 deaths a year per 100,000 people for white men.

Researchers anxiously watched the high plateau in the death rates in the 1960s, fearing another dramatic rise might be around the corner.

But instead of the feared rise, a clear downward trend is seen — an 8.9 per cent decrease for white males between 1968 and 1972, the last year for which complete data has been studied, Stamler said.

The coronary death rate for white men is now 427 fatalities per 100,000 people, slightly below the 1950 level.

Similar but smaller death-rate decreases have been found for women and non-whites.

Bill encourages body donations

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Committee work in the Missouri General Assembly focused Wednesday on bills to encourage potential body donors, extend a half-cent transportation tax and establish a no-fault insurance system.

In addition, the Seante heard the introduction of bills to prohibit hitch-hiking, regulate conference athletic activities of public schools, create a commission to study the state's junior college system and raise the salaries of police chiefs in large cities from $28,860 to $33,488.

The House Insurance Committee heard conflicting versions of what the proposed no-fault legislation would do to car insurance rates.

Committee Chairman Walter Meyer, the bill's sponsor, said it would require insurance companies to drop their rates on liability coverage at least 15 per cent. But the Bellefontaine Neighbors Democrat added that the total rate might not drop that much since insurers would be permitted to charge more for comprehensive and collision insurance.

James P. Landis of the Missouri Bar Association said a study showed over-all rates would jump under no-fault instead of decline, rising 17 to 42 per cent.

Calling the proposal a "fraud on the public." Landis said no-fault was unconstitutional because it prevented a person from recovering damages for injuries he suffers, and he claimed the public would "overwhelmingly reject" the plan if they fully understood it.

The bill would prevent anyone from suing to collect damages for bodily injuries less than $500, but it would, for the first time, require all Missouri motorists to have car insurance.

The House Health Committee reacted favorably to the bill encouraging donors, which would require that a form appear on the back of drivers' licenses where a person could indicate if he wishes to donate all or part of his body to medical science.

Winesses told the committee the measure would boost the number of kidneys and eyes made available for transplants.

Dr. Frederick Whittier of Kansas City added that the increased number of donors and transplants would decrease the need for expensive kidney treatments and could save Missourians $40 million over the next five years.

Committee chairman Phil Snowden, D-Gladstone, said he sees no objections to the bill, but a committee vote on it will be delayed until technical questions about printing forms on licenses can be answered.

In a hearing before the Senate Municipal Corporation Committee officials from St. Louis and Kansas City urged approval of a measure calling for a two-year extension of the half-cent transportation sales tax.

They acknowledged the enabling legislation for the tax, which expires at the end of this year, was approved as a temporary aid to the metropolitan areas.

But they said they have been unsuccessful in finding any other way to assist the Area Transportation Authority in Kansas City and the Bi-State Transit Co.

A.J. Wilson, assistant to St. Louis Mayor John Poelker, agreed the tax is regressive, but said that has been offset because bus service has been improved while the fares have been lowered.

Kansas City Councilmzn Leon Brownfield said the tax is not the best, "but it's the only one that we have found that can solve the problems that exist."

Committee action on the matter is expected next week.

Drive may begin to reinstitute death penalty

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—If the Missouri Legislature does not appear ready to reinstitute the death penalty by spring, an initiative petition drive will be mounted to accomplish the task, the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee said today.

Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal, said three attempts to get the bill through the legislature are enough in taking that course toward reinstituting the death penalty.

And if it appears by late May or early June, less than a month before the end of the session, that the bill will fail again, Volkmer said the petition drive will be started.

"We'll know by then if it's going to pass," he commented, adding that details of any drive have not been worked out yet.

Although the aim of the drive will be to place a death penalty bill before the voters of the state, he said beginning the petition process before the end of the session could also put pressure on the state Senate to pass a mandatory death penalty law.

The judiciary committee has approved a bill similar to one passed by the entire house last year calling for death upon conviction of 11 types of murder and sent it to the floor for debate. But in the last two regular sessions, legislators have been unable to agree on the types of crimes to be punished by mandatory death.

Only last fall, Missouri voters for the second time in the state's history, enacted a new law through the petition process, putting revised campaign financing regulations on the books.

could take the entire patrol unit and put it to work on the problem and we still wouldn't have enough men to handle the complaints."

The undercover unit operates in total secrecy. "We don't even know when they are in the area," Lemonds pointed out. "When they have completed their investigation, they report to local authorities the findings of their probe."

The undercover unit worked in the New Madrid and Dunklin County areas recently, resulting in about a half dozen arrests in the Risco and Malden area.

"Parents are definitely concerned about the drug problem," Lemonds said. "We make many appearances before civic groups, and no matter what we go there to talk about -- we always end up discussing drugs."

Marijuana is so dangerous it threatens to turn millions of young Americans into brain-damaged "semi-zombies" who may produce another generation of intellectual or physical cripples, a Senate investigation subcommittee chairman has warned.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Mississippi, citing testimony by 20 doctors and psychiatrists from around the world about marijuana's effects, said the United States is caught in a "frightening" epidemic that has been spread in part by "a myth of harmlessness."

The epidemic, which Eastland said has begun to invade grade schools, is being made worse by a recent shift from conventional marijuana to hashish and liquid hashish, which are derived from different parts of the hemp plant and are eight to 10 times stronger than marijuana.

The question — what is wrong with taking drugs as long as no one else is hurt by doing so — is frequently asked by marijuana users.

It is difficult for an individual to do something to himself that has consequences only to himself. Inevitably, the act will have an impact upon those who are close to him, upon those who are dependent on him and upon society.

To "drop out" via drugs means that the person may become dependent upon the social structure for a variety of public services. Those who become physically or emotionally disabled as a result of drug misuse are generally totally dependent upon society for their subsistence.

Many other questions about drug abuse will be discussed in later articles dealing with local law enforcement officials, school officials, juvenile officers, judges, prosecutors and drug users.

Floodwater outlet to be discussed

MEMPHIS, Tenn. The Memphis District of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has announced that a public meeting for consideration of a plan to provide an improved outlet for floodwaters through the Inter-River Drainage District Levee to the St. Francis River will be held at 1:30 p.m. Feb. 4 in room 203 of the Butler County Courthouse in Poplar Bluff, Mo.

The purpose of the public meeting is to present the results of studies to determine the advisability of constructing an improved outlet for damaging floodwaters through the Inter-River Drainage District Levee to the St. Francis River.

The proposed plan of improvement provides for construction of a new outlet ditch from Ditch No. 30 to the levee and for construction of a new outlet ditch from Ditch No. 30 to the levee and for construction of a new gated outlet structure through the levee to alleviate flooding upstream from the existing outlet.

The proposed project would reduce flows along the downstream reaches of Ditch No. 30 by diverting flood flows from Ditch No. 30 to the St. Francis River approximately three and one-half miles upstream from the existing culvert.

False advertising in New Hampshire

By Tom Tiede

CLAREMONT, N.H. — (NEA) — Ever since New Hampshire changed its license plate slogan from a gentle "Scenic" to a boisterous "Live Free Or Die", George Maynard has stewed. Intently religious (Jehovah's Witness), he has felt the new motto anti-Christian in principle. "I believe man lives forever and the state has no right to say otherwise."

So, six months ago Maynard covered up that portion of his plates with masking tape. Kids would occasionally pull the tape off, forcing Maynard to eventually punch out the "Or Die" portion with a nail. Otherwise, he was content — until recently when he was stopped by the police and given an arrest summons for "defacing" the plate.

"That's when it began," Maynard says, "and it hasn't stopped."

Maynard admitted his guilt in court and because he could not, in conscience, pay a fine, his sentence was suspended.

Police, however, then extracted their own kind of retribution. "When I left the court I saw this officer confiscating my plates. He didn't ask permission, he didn't tell me why, he just did it. I asked him how I'd get home and he said it was my problem. He acted like I was some kind of louse."

Twenty miles from his living room, Maynard thus decided to make cardboard plates for the drive home. He didn't get far. "The local police radioed ahead for the State Patrol. They stopped me, tore off my cardboard plates and gave me another summons. That officer, too, was unpleasant; I was made to feel almost un-American, if you know what I mean."

In fact, Maynard is hardly un-American. Not one of the "hippie freaks" the locals recount in disgust, Maynard, 42, is married, has two children, owns a home, and earns steady income from a printing job. "I don't have long hair, I don't live different from anyone. But, you know, in this state patriotism is everything. If you're even suspected of not toeing the line the police can be very unfriendly."

He's right, the state is superpatriotic. Cops carry flag decals, flag pins and flag shoulder patches. One fellow in the state legislature has in years past introduced a bill requiring every able-bodied man to carry a rifle and 500 rounds of ammunition (Communists are coming).

As for the license plate motto, it was adopted to answer the national protests of the Vietnam war. Proponents said it reflected state thinking and should be an influence to people across the nation.

Not everybody here, however, feels that bluster is synonymous with love of country and so the license plate thing has had numerous detractors. Most critics think it's "inappropriate," others believe it offers an extremist viewpoint, a few have refused to suffer it at all. Enter George Maynard. What it all boils down to, he says, is that "the motto is not only offensive, it's hypocritical. I'm certainly not living very free if I can't practice my religious beliefs."

His point seems valid. And though his battle is small beans in the present affairs of men, there are large questions involved. No doubt Maynard went too far in punching out a part of the motto, the masking tape would have sufficed. But given his religious objection, does he not have the right to protect his values? Even without the religious aspects of the equation, one wonders at the wisdom of a state forcing any citizen to advertise an unwanted slogan.

Maine's "Vacationland" is harmless enough, even New Jersey's "Garden State" slogan is, if phony, at least unoffensive — but "Live Free Or Die?" That's as foreign to some as if California would adopt "If It Feels Good, Do It."

More disturbing than this, though, in the Maynard case, is the inflexibility of the system which has made his life worrisome. The law is the law is the law. Early on, officials should have divined the idiocy of this kind of persecution and granted the perpetrator his simple desires. What's the harm? The man left the plate identification intact and did not alter its useful purpose. Yet, George Maynard now has a criminal record and is thought of as a town kook.

Today, Maynard, following principle, is walking. So are his wife and children. "I'm worried that my wife will have to quit her job, because she needs a car. She sells for a jewelry company." He has applied to the state for permission to buy commercial plates which do not carry the slogan but his chances are slim. He has also pointed out to officials that plates on state-owned vehicles are devoid of the motto. How come? Yet the objection has been overruled with silence.

And so his future is uncertain. He says he may have to move away somewhere. Because he can't "Live Free" in the state that advertises it.
